LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) ---President Ford sat in a chair beside former President Richard M. Nixon's hospital bed on Friday. "Did you have a good night?" Ford asked.

73RD YEAR

"None of my nights are too good," Nixon replied in a husky voice. His hair was mussed and his face was drawn. He was thinner than most people remember him.

Nixon's passion while in office was foreign affairs, and Ford told him of plans in the near future for presidential trips to Japan, South Korea and the Soviet Union.

He told Nixon — he called him Dick - of tours by Nixon's favorite. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, to the Soviet Union, India, Pakistan and Afghanistan.

The visit was a surprise to Nixon. Fearing any sustained excitement might be too much resigned the presidency Aug. 9. After the visit, Mrs. Nixon was heard by a Ford aide telling presidential physician William Lukash, who accompanied Ford to the hospital, that she thought the visit had been very good for her husband.

"Be well," Ford said as the meeting closed after eight minutes.

He took Nixon's right hand in his and patted it.

"It was very good of President Ford to come and see me,"

Nixon said afterwards. Then, feeling tired, Nixon dozed off.

A tube that had been run through Nixon's nose into his stomach to drain off excessive fluids had been removed three hours before Ford's visit. Nixon's physician, Dr. John C. Lungren, said it was no longer

Lungren said he had approved Ford's visit because he thought it would boost Nixon's morale. Ford, in California for Republican campaign appearances, had been asked to come to the hospital by Mrs. Nixon. Lungren said that though Nixon was still listed in critical condition, "he is slowly and steadily improving."

Sharon and Karen Kobza say they always do things together, so the duo's decision to enter the Job Corps in tandem was not out of the ordinary.

Arabs Want Israel To Talk With PLO

The oil weapon threat was raised anew Friday in a war of nerves in the Middle East, and Israeli troops raided a Lebanese village.

Egypt's semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram indicated that Arab nations will cut off oil shipments to the United States again if Washington supports Israel's refusal to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"It is not in the interest of the United States to be lured by Israel into supporting refusal of direct negotiations with the PLO," it said. "Any attempt to abort the Palestinian entity will have consequences in oil rich Arab countries. America knows well that its prestige as a big power is linked to its ability to guarantee the flow of Arab oil to the Western world,"

The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda charged the West has launched a "war of nerves" against the oil producing nations designed to intimidate them into lowering oil export

It said the West's "psychological war against the oil producing countries is obviously being staged along the old cold war pattern, poisoning the atmosphere of international detente and pulling the world back.'

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who is campaigning for lower oil prices, met with the Shah of Iran in Tehran. But the shah has said he will not lower the price of Iran's oil as long as the industrialized nations sell their export commodities and technologies to Iran and the other oil-exporting countries at "exorbitant prices."

Israeli troops raided the Lebanese village of Blida before dawn, blew up two houses suspected of being bases for Arab casualties were reported.

The Israeli command said three terrorists killed in Israel on Tuesday infiltrated across the border from Blida.

In Beirut, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed it carried out a two-week "panic mission" to paralyze life in northern Israel. It said the operation was staged by two specially trained underground units based in Israel and was designed to prove to the Israelis that their army and government would "never be able to immunize Israel against commando attacks."

Both units marauded the Upper Galilee province, deliberately left visible footprints that panicked Israel into declaring a state of emergency throughout northern districts since Oct. 12," the Front said.

"This led to putting all northern Israeli settlements on a day and night alert, suspending schools and paralyzing normal life completely in the area." French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues conferred with heads of Israeli towns and villages along the Lebanese border. But Mayor Avraham Aloni of Qiryat Shmonah refused to attend, saying in a cable, "I don't want to shake the hand that shook the hand of Yasir Arafat," the PLO chief Sauvagnargues met in Beirut.

Guerrillas attacked Qiryat Shmonah in April, killing 18 Israelis, mostly women and children. In Algiers, Arafat joined other Arab and African leaders sitting beside President Houari Boumedienne at a parade marking the 20th anniversary of the revolution against French colonial rule.

Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Syrian President Hafez Assad, Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and Cambodia's exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk were also there.

Boy Dies Of Cyanide In Halloween Candy

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Police combed a residential area door-to-door Friday after an 8-year-old boy died of cyanide poisoning he received in Halloween candy.

Police Lt. E. L. Goad said an autopsy showed Timothy M. O'Bryan died Thursday night from cyanide contained in candy he received while trick-or-treating in a Pasadena suburban area.

Goad called upon all parents in the Houston suburbs of Pasadena and Deer Park to confiscate any trick-or-treat candy their children received. He also asked any persons who collected candy in the neighborhood to bring it into the police

Goad said that chemical tests by the Harris County Medical Examiner's office showed cyanide granules found in the candy eaten Thursday night by Timothy, who died shortly after eating the candy. He said Timothy ate only one type of candy - a powdered sweet contained in a 22inch long tube.

He said cyanide was also found in two other containers of the same kind of candy which was given to two children accompanying Timothy.

The child, his sister, Elizabeth, 5, and another child were taken to the Bowling Green subdivision of Pasadena for

Halloween treat-or-treating by Timothy's father. Ronald O'Bryan, an optometrist.

Chambers Will Look For Lies In Whiting Testimony

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha Friday said he will review testimony given to the Legislature's Judiciary Committee by the education director of the Penal Complex to determine whether it contains "deliberate lies and misleading statements."

Chambers told his colleagues on the committee that he believes Mrs. Edith Whiting may have "attempted to mislead" senators on a number of matters.

If his study of the transcript tends to support that apprehension. Chambers said, he will present his conclusions to Correctional Services Director Joseph Vitek to determine whether he wishes to take action on the matter.

Other members of the committee agreed that Chambers should proceed with his study of the record.

A Department of Education study committee was critical of her performance.

The legislative committee met briefly Friday to receive written comments from its staff on the Department of Education's recommendations.

"We believe the recommendations are

The staff agreed with recommendations that school principals at the two institutions be given "greater flexibility" and that "creativity by the teachers in their classrooms should be encouraged to a greater degree."

Improved library operations were also endorsed.

Israeli troops raided the Lebanese village of Blida before dawn, blew up two houses suspected of being bases for Arab terrorists, then returned to Israel. No casualties were reported. The Israeli command said three terrorists killed in Israel on Tuesday infiltrated across the border from Blida.

In Beirut, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed it carried out a two-week "panic mission" to paralyze life in northern Israel.

It said the operation was staged by two specially trained underground units based in Israel and was designed to prove to the Israelis that their army and government would "never be able to immunize Israel against commando attacks.

"Both units marauded the Upper Galilee province, deliberately left visible footprints that panicked Israel into declaring a state of emergency throughout northern districts since Oct. 12," the Front said.

"This led to putting all northern Israeli settlements on a day and night alert, suspending schools and paralyzing normal life completely in the area.

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues conferred with heads of Israeli towns and villages along the Lebanese border.

But Mayor Avraham Aloni of Qiryat Shmonah refused to attend, saying in a cable, "I don't want to shake the hand that shook the hand of Yasir Arafat," the PLO chief Sauvagnargues met in Beirut.

Guerrillas attacked Qiryat Shmonah in April, killing 18 Israelis, mostly women and children.

In Algiers, Arafat joined other Arab and African leaders sitting beside President Houari Boumedienne at a parade marking the 20th anniversary of the revolution against French colonial rule.

Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Syrian President Hafez Assad, Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and Cambodia's exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk were also there.

Boy Dies Of Cyanide In Halloween Candy

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) - Police combed a residential area door-to-door Friday after an 8-year-old boy died of cyanide poisoning he received in Halloween candy

Police Lt. E. L. Goad said an autopsy showed Timothy M. O'Bryan died Thursday night from cyanide contained in candy he received while trick-or-treating in a Pasadena suburban area.

Goad called upon all parents in the Houston suburbs of Pasadena and Deer Park to confiscate any trick-or-treat candy their children received. He also asked any persons who collected candy in the neighborhood to bring it into the police

Goad said that chemical tests by the Harris County Medical Examiner's office showed cyanide granules found in the candy eaten Thursday night by Timothy. who died shortly after eating the candy. He said Timothy ate only one type of candy - a powdered sweet contained in a 22inch long tube.

He said cyanide was also found in two other containers of the same kind of candy which was given to two children accompanying Timothy.

The child, his sister, Elizabeth, 5, and another child were taken to the Bowling Green subdivision of Pasadena for Halloween treat-or-treating by Timothy's father, Ronald O'Bryan, an optometrist.

Chambers Will Look For Lies In Whiting Testimony

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha Friday said he will review testimony given to the Legislature's Judiciary Committee by the education director of the Penal Complex to determine whether it contains "deliberate lies and misleading statements.

Chambers told his colleagues on the committee that he believes Mrs. Edith Whiting may have "attempted to mislead" senators on a number of matters. If his study of the transcript tends to support that apprehension, Chambers said, he will present his conclusions to Correctional Services Director Joseph Vitek to determine whether he wishes to take action on the matter.

Other members of the committee agreed that Chambers should proceed with his study of the record. Mrs. Whiting is under fire for her ad-

Democrat Dyas Is Convinced He'll Defeat Incumbent

By BOB GUENTHER Star Staff Writer

Hess Dyas has a serious case of infectious optimism.

The Democrat candidate for First District Congress is not just putting up a good front when he tells a well-wisher, "We're going to win. We've got the momentum."

Off the record as well as for quotation, Dyas feels he will defeat incumbent Rep. Charles Thone in the Nov. 5 election.

Dyas' visits to 125 towns and his 700-mile walk from Bloomfield to Falls City have convinced him of that.

Best Chance

Other politicians lately have also said they sense Dyas has the best chance to win of the three Democrat congressional candidates.

"Nobody believed me" early in the campaign. "But the lines are going to converge on election day," he said crossing his fingers in a visual display of his and Thone's popularity trends.

"This election's going to be won or lost by about 3-4,000 votes," the 37-year-old former school teacher said. "If we can just get the people out to vote, we can tip the election our way.'

That determination, he said, enabled him to recruit capable and hard-working people and to raise the $100,000 he said is necessary to be competitive.

Relaxing in his office during a brief lull in a recent day of campaigning, Dyas said he is certain Thone is running scared.

Believes In Competition "Too often," he said,

"Republicans haven't had to run scared. He's used to breezing into office. Darrell Berg (Thone's Democrat challenger in 1972) is a fine man, but he didn't have the financial resources to win. I believe in competition."

For the first time, he said Thone is being seriously challenged. The last time Thone was challenged he lost, Dyas said; that was in the 1964 lieutenant governor race.

Running against Thone has been difficult, he said.

"To begin with, there weren't that many people unhappy with Thone," he said.

Biggest Obstacles Dyas said his two biggest obstacles have been Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska.

"People compare Thone to Thone's not so bad.' So I ask them what's Thone done? "They can't answer, and it's beginning to get to them," Dyas expenses.

"Nebraska hasn't had that kind of aggressive leadership in a long time," he said.

"Public Relations Campaign" Dyas said Thone in his two terms has managed to avoid stepping on any toes while running "a great public relations campaign at the taxpayers' expense," such as personalized birthday cards.

Dyas said he would like to prove to people in the district "that there's more to being a congressman than sending birthday cards and newsletters with no news content."

A hand-shaking tour of State Farm Insurance's office in Lincoln showed Dyas is best remembered for two things the 700-mile walk and his minor case of phlebitis.

One middle-aged man told him, "I appreciate your ambition. That's a lot of hard work." "We'll see you in Washington," a young woman

"How's the phlebitis," asked another.

Dodging puddles as he walked back to his station wagon, Dyas said, "I miss that walk and not just because it was an effective campaign activity.

"Carol and I hadn't been together that much since we were married. She's a good campaigner."

He patted his stornach and noted he lost 10 pounds on the walk.

"Some said the walk would be a waste of time and that I wouldn't meet a lot of people. But I did." he said.

Republicans have called him "Pious Dyas" for warning Thone not to take special interest money while he accepted labor union money.

Dyas said the money is contributed voluntarily by union members and funneled through union headquarters for convenience.

"I'm delighted to have the backing of working people," he said, "You'll remember Thone opposed the minimum wage bill. That's a terrible way for Thone to fight inflation."

Benefit Concert

Ed Icenogle, Dyas' press officer, stuck his head into the office to tell Dyas it appeared a Stephen Stills benefit concert for his campaign was selling out and might have to be moved to a larger auditorium.

A broad grin beamed across Dyas' face.

"That's great. Sounds like I'll be able to pay off the $15,000 in loans I took out last year," he said.

"I'm not afraid to take chances. You've gotta - this sounds corny but it's true — be a Pollyanna optimist We don't take no for an answer. That's why we're going to win," he

At a press conference Morrison, a former three-term governor, said, "One of my first acts as attorney general would be to seek a ban on all advertising in the race for attorney general."

Candidates for the office, he said, should rely on face-to-face confrontations and the news media to win voter support.

Unemployment Worst Since 1961

By United Press International

The nation's unemployment rate rose to its highest level in 13 years last month, the government said Friday, and the auto industry announced even more lavoffs and plant closings.

The Ford administration said it would investigate supermarkets that raise prices of items already on the shelves to determine the "justification for this practice, if any." It was the latest demonstration of government pressure on grocers and food middlemen.

And the chairman of Jewel Tea, a supermarket chain, told a conference on food prices that consumers should be told about profits in the meat department. Other food chains said the information was not

5.5 Million Jobless

The Labor Department said 200,000 persons become jobless in October, bringing the national unemployment rate to 6%, or 5.5 million persons, the worst since November

Many economists predict that in early 1975 nearly seven million persons, or 7% of the nation's work force, will be jobless as economic recession deepens.

The October rate neared the 13-year high for unemployment of 6.1% in November 1961. Administration officials blamed the rise in unemployment on growth in the work force and refused to describe the economic situation as a recession.

Meany Says It's Worse

But AFL-CIO President George Meany said the latest jobless figures "grossly understate the gravity of this recession, for the figures do not include the massive layoffs of the past two weeks — especially those in the

In a year the jobless total has risen by 1.3 million persons, while the labor force has grown by 2.1 million, meaning almost two of every three job-seekers have gone unemployed during the year.

Blue collar workers, especially blacks, in the construction and auto industries were the hardest hit by slumping sales and tight money in the auto and construction industries. Overall unemployment among factory workers has risen from 3.9% a year ago

Ford Laving Off In the latest auto layoffs, Ford Motor Co. will shut three small car assembly plants next week and idle another 1,000 workers from its payroll indefinitely.

The one-week plant closings will affect 12.-125 workers at plants in Dearborn, Mich., Metuchen, N.J., and San Jose, Calif., as well as workers at parts plants in Michigan.

"The recession is growing rapidly," Meany said, "and the administration has no program to halt it. That is why the AFL-CIO has urged workers to vote next Tuesday for congressional candidates who will put America back to work and provide adequately and immediately for the unemployed.' Bill Awaits Action

Under legislation proposed by the administration and awaiting congressional action, a jobless rate of 6.2% next month would trigger an emergency federal employment program of 80,000 jobs at a cost of $500 million to the taxpayer.

The manpower plan is keyed for when the national unemployment rate averages 6% for three months. In September the rate was 5.8% and a rate of 6.2% for November would be enough to start the jobs program.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent said inflation — not unemployment — was still the nation's top economic problem.

Ford Says Inflation Could Double

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - President Ford warned Friday that the current rate of inflation "could double by 1976" without belt-tightening and a tight fiscal

"If I were to take the easy route of additional pump-priming and deficit spending as the economy cools off this winter, it could really cause trouble," Ford told an economic conference as he campaigned in the West for a more cooperative Congress.

"We could see the current inflation rate - if we don't do a little sacrificing and belt tightening — that rate could double

"That is not a very happy prospect," he said in departing from his prepared text. And he said "it ought to encourage us to make the big battle now.

Ford arrived in Portland after a bedside visit with critically ill former President Richard M. Nixon in a Long Beach, Calif., hospital, and a speech in Fresno. Addressing a crowd estimated by police

Ford said he came to Fresno "because the issues are far, far too important for me to sit on the sidelines . . . the stakes are far too high for me to be a sideline-

The Fresno crowd was sprinkled with American flags as well as signs of protest. Waving such signs as "I can't afford Ford" and "Go home," the demonstrators chanted during Ford's speech, but the President appeared to pay them no leed as he called Mathias "an inflation fighter" and said he was needed to combat "the big spenders" in Ford also urged the election of the Republican candidate for governor, Houston Flournoy.

Oil Antitrust Case Stalled, Staff Tells FTC

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission's antitrust case against the big oil companies is stalled and in danger of being killed by procedural delays, papers filed in the case disclosed Friday.

It has been 15 months since the FTC accused the eight largest oil companies of contributing to the energy crisis by smothering competition in the development of gasoline

Yet FTC lawyers prosecuting the case said they have only scratched the surface in getting information they need from the firms in-

The legal staff, in a recommendation submitted to the FTC, asked the commission to change the ground rules under which they are taking depositions from the companies. They said the present setup allows the oil firms to challenge each attempt and is resulting in a delay that will last up to 10 years if it goes unchecked.

The paper said it was "shocking" that only six months have elapsed since the last deposition was sent out. The lawyers said they planned on "hundreds" of depositions and at this rate it would take too long. The companies - Exxon, Texaco, Gulf, nine depositions had been taken and that

Mobil, Standard of California, Standard of Indiana, Shell and Atlantic Richfield - are accused of monopolizing refinery capacity, preventing new entries into the field and stifling competition.

5.5, Million Jobless

The Labor Department said 200,000 persons become jobless in October, bringing the national unemployment rate to 6%, or 5.5 million persons, the worst since November

Many economists predict that in early 1975 nearly seven million persons, or 7% of the nation's work force, will be jobless as economic recession deepens

The October rate neared the 13-year high for unemployment of 6.1% in November 1961. Administration officials blamed the rise in unemployment on growth in the work force and refused to describe the economic situation as a recession.

Meany Says It's Worse

But AFL-CIO President George Meany said the latest jobless figures "grossly understate the gravity of this recession, for the figures do not include the massive layoffs of the past two weeks — especially those in the auto industry."

In a year the jobless total has risen by 1.3 million persons, while the labor force has grown by 2.1 million, meaning almost two of every three job-seekers have gone unemployed during the year.

Blue collar workers, especially blacks, in the construction and auto industries were the hardest hit by slumping sales and tight money in the auto and construction industries. Overall unemployment among factory workers has risen from 3.9% a year ago

Ford Laying Off In the latest auto layoffs, Ford Motor Co. will shut three small car assembly plants next week and idle another 1,000 workers from its payroll indefinitely.

The one-week plant closings will affect 12,-125 workers at plants in Dearborn, Mich., Metuchen, N.J., and San Jose, Calif., as well as workers at parts plants in Michigan.

"The recession is growing rapidly," Meany said. "and the administration has no program to halt it. That is why the AFL-CIO has urged workers to vote next Tuesday for congressional candidates who will put America back to work and provide adequately and immediately for the unemployed." Bill Awaits Action

Under legislation proposed by the administration and awaiting congressional action, a jobless rate of 6.2% next month would trigger an emergency federal employment program of 80,000 jobs at a cost of $500 million to the taxpayer.

The manpower plan is keyed for when the national unemployment rate averages 6% for three months. In September the rate was 5.8% and a rate of 6.2% for November would be enough to start the jobs program.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent said inflation - not unemployment - was still the nation's top economic problem.

Ford Says Inflation Could Double

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — President Ford warned Friday that the current rate of inflation "could double by 1976" without belt-tightening and a tight fiscal

"If I were to take the easy route of additional pump-priming and deficit spending as the economy cools off this winter, it could really cause trouble," Ford told an economic conference as he campaigned in the West for a more cooperative Congress.

"We could see the current inflation rate - if we don't do a little sacrificing and belt tightening — that rate could double by 1976.

"That is not a very happy prospect," he said in departing from his prepared text. And he said "it ought to encourage us to make the big battle now.

Oil Antitrust Case Stalled, Staff Tells FTC Washington (UPI) - The Federal Trade

Commission's antitrust case against the big foil-companies is stalled and in danger of being killed by procedural delays, papers filed in the case disclosed Friday.

It has been 15 months since the FTC accused the eight largest oil companies of contributing to the energy crisis by smothering competition in the development of gasoline

"Yet FTC lawyers prosecuting the case said they have only soratched the surface in getting information they need from the firms in-

The legal staff, in a recommendation submitted to the FTC, asked the commission to change the ground rules under which they are taking depositions from the companies. They said the present setup allows the oil firms to challenge each attempt and is resulting in a delay that will last up to 10 years if it goes unchecked.

The paper said it was "shocking" that only nine depositions had been taken and that six months have elapsed since the last deposition was sent out. The lawyers said they planned on "hundreds" of depositions and at this rate it would take too long.

The companies - Exxon, Texaco, Gulf, Mobil, Standard of California, Standard of Indiana, Shell and Atlantic Richfield — are accused of monopolizing refinery capacity, preventing new entries into the field and stifling competition.

Democrat Dyas Is Convinced He'll Defeat Incumbent

By BOB GUENTHER Star Staff Writer

Hess Dyas has a serious case of infectious optimism. The Democrat candidate for First District Congress is not just putting up a good front when he tells a well-wisher, "We're going to win. We've got the momentum.'

Off the record as well as for quotation, Dyas feels he will defeat incumbent Rep. Charles Thone in the Nov. 5 election.

Dyas' visits to 125 towns and his 700-mile walk from Bloomfield to Falls City have convinced him of that.

Best Chance

Other politicians lately have also said they sense Dyas has the best chance to win of the three Democrat congressional can-

"Nobody believed me" early in the campaign. "But the lines are going to converge on election day," he said crossing his fingers in a visual display of his and Thone's popularity trends.

"This election's going to be won or lost by about 3-4,000 votes," the 37-year-old former school teacher said. "If we can just get the people out to vote, we can tip the election our way.'

That determination, he said, enabled him to recruit capable and hard-working people and to raise the $100,000 he said is necessary to be competitive.

Relaxing in his office during a brief lull in a recent day of campaigning, Dyas said he is certain Thone is running scared.

Believes In Competition "Too often," he said. "Republicans haven't had to run scared. He's used to breezing into office. Darrell Berg (Thone's Democrat challenger in 1972) is a fine man, but he didn't have the financial resources to win. I believe in competition."

For the first time, he said Thone is being seriously

Running against Thone has been difficult, he said.

"To begin with, there weren't that many people unhappy with Thone," he said. Biggest Obstacles

Dyas said his two biggest obstacles have been Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska.

"People compare Thone to Curtis and Hruska and say, 'Gee, Thone's not so bad.' So I ask them what's Thone done?

"They can't answer, and it's beginning to get to them," Dyas

"I want to give Nebraska the same aggressive leadership in Congress that neighboring states have - like Bill Roy in Kansas, James Abourezk in South Dakota and John Culver and Ed Mezvinsky in Iowa.

"Nebraska hasn't had that kind of aggressive leadership in a long time," he said. "Public Relations Campaign"

Dyas said Thone in his two terms has managed to avoid stepping on any toes while running "a great public relations campaign at the taxpayers' expense," such as personalized birthday cards.

Dyas said he would like to prove to people in the district "that there's more to being a congressman than sending birthday cards and newsletters with no news content.

A hand-shaking tour of State Farm Insurance's office in Lincoln showed Dyas is best remembered for two things the 700-mile walk and his minor case of phlebitis.

One middle-aged man told him, "I appreciate your ambition. That's a lot of hard work."

"We'll see you in Washington," a young woman

paigner. He patted his stomach and noted he lost 10 pounds on the walk.

"Some said the walk would be a waste of time and that I wouldn't meet a lot of people. But I did," he said.

Republicans have called him "Pious Dyas" for warning Thone not to take special interest money while he accepted labor union money.

Dyas said the money is contributed voluntarily by union members and funneled through union headquarters for convenience.

Benefit Concert

Ed Icenogle, Dyas' press officer, stuck his head into the office to tell Dyas it appeared a Stephen Stills benefit concert for his campaign was selling out and might have to be moved to a larger auditorium.

A broad grin beamed across Dyas' face.

"That's great. Sounds like I'll be able to pay off the $15,000 in loans I took out last year," he

Private Practice The Issue

In the race for Lancaster County Attorney, voters Tuesday will have the opportunity to pick between two 40-year-old lawyers, each with prosecuting experience.

Ron Lahners, County Atty. Paul Douglas' chief deputy and choice to succeed him, has served 13 years under Douglas and is the Republican candidate. The Democratic candidate is Jack Lindner, a former Lincoln city prosecutor who is now an attorney here after practicing law briefly in Ames, Iowa.

The major issue in the campaign is Lindner's opposition to the county attorney and his deputies engaging in the private practice of law on the side, a "fringe benefit" as it were, which has long been tolerated. Lindner points to Lahners' support of the supplementary private practice by the county attorney and staff, and Lahners' part-time NU teaching job, in arguing that the county attorney's office needs a "full-time" staff.

We agree with Lindner's contention that allowing the county attorney and staff to engage in private practice, no matter if it amounts to little, gives rise to the possibility of conflict of interest. It is best to eliminate that possibility, we think, and Lindner's position on the issue is a major point in his favor.

Professional opinion as to the two candidates is divided, as would be expected. A recurring theme heard among a number of local attorneys is that Lahners' volatile temperament has worked against him in the past and would continue to get in the way of his being an effective prosecutor. Lahners, it is felt in some circles, is an overly-zealous prosecutor, leveling in some cases charges of a more severe degree than the offense demands, and it is alleged his sometimes hardline tactics have been offensive to juries, judges and other attorneys.

But Lahners' legal abilities otherwise are not under challenge. His reputation generally is that of a capable attorney.

Lindner enjoys a similar reputation as to professional competence. Plus, during his service with the city, Lindner was in our opinion a no-nonsense prosecutor, and a reasonable and compassionate one as well

Based on what seems to be the overriding issue of the campaign — whether or not to continue the private practice of law in the county attorney's office — and Lindner's demonstrated even temperament, The Star recommends a vote for Jack Lindner for Lancaster county attorney.

Colin, Hamilton

There is a day and night difference between the opposing candidates running for two seats on the Lancaster County Board.

Incumbent Bob Colin, a Republican, seeks a second term in a contest with former Commissioner Ralph Harlan, a Democrat, for the 2nd District seat. And Democrat Bruce Hamilton is seeking to replace Republican Kenneth Bourne, who has kept the 3rd District seat warm for 16 years. While nominated by districts, commissioners are elected on a county-wide basis in the general election.

Harlan and Bourne personify the old status quo and thus many of the ills of county government. Affable men they are, but also uncertain, aging, slow to respond and behind the times.

Incumbent Colin in the 2nd District and challenger Hamilton in the 3rd, on the other hand, are not afraid to look into the future to see what's coming. Both agree on the inevitability of city-county government consolidation some time in the future, for example, and each has his ideas on how best to prepare county government for that eventuality.

Colin has taken a sharp interest in county affairs, does not shy away from controversy and has contributed a significant amount of leadership at a level of government where there is precious little leadership. Considering his good record and his opposition in this election, Colin is very much deserving of re-election.

Hamilton, we suggest without fear of serious argument, is one of the best qualified candidates to appear on the county scene in years. His election to the 3rd District seat is in the best interests of Lancaster County.

Patchwork Prairie Country

One day several weeks ago a neighbor lady and I went to a large electric fixture display. The beautiful chandeliers hung from the ceiling of several rooms and other types of light fixtures hung on the walls. It was almost overwhelming to see all the prisms, copper and gold glitter in the light.

We had gone to select new lighting fixtures at least "look" as is a woman's way of making a selection, since the lady is building a new home.

The next morning as I talked to her on the phone she said she was so glad her husband had turned on the television when he got up that morning for she was almost in panic in her semi-sleep.

She was in the electric shop, dream-wise, down on her hands and knees, crawling this way and that trying to get out from under the chandeliers. Every direction she went she was abruptly stopped by a chandelier hitting her on the head.

There was one type of lighting chandelier that hung from the ceiling on the floor with lights giving the appearance of dripping water. This one she said was the biggest obstacle of all. She could not get under it regardless of how she hugged the floor in an attempt to get out of the room. Truly she said it was a problem that almost ended in panic had it not been for her husband who turned on the TV.

I laughed for I, too, have had such panic dreams and yelled desperately for help. No one ever seemed to hear me. Isn't it strange the way the mind continues to function in our sleep, although surely it too must be partially asleep?

The corn is out of the field, the soybeans long gone and the milo almost completely harvested.

It has been an ideal harvest season although a rain was much needed. This morning the fog is heavy and it will be noon before The Farmer can get into the field.

Perhaps this change of weather from bright, sunny mornings to one of fog is telling of a change in the weather pattern.

I would like to see a day of rain replace the one we had yesterday. The wind blew and the dust circled, the milo husks flew and the leaves scattered in every direction from the trees.

A cock pheasant on the road as I passed in the car had a difficult time getting off the ground and into the air. It tilted this way and that, its tail went up and down, its body tipped to left and right until it finally decided to give up the flight and land just over the fence line in a field of corn.

I would class it as an emergency landing for if I were in a plane flying in such a precarious flight pattern, I would be more than willing to have the pilot set me back down on the ground again.

Then there are those in sports who can scarcely wait for football practice. In fact sports is the only thing that keeps them in school.

It must be a reflection on our society when we hear it said we need sports or half of the youngsters would quit school before graduation. Life is not a "sporting" thing. It is very rough at times and shouting "Rah! Rah! "doesn't make for a happy ending.

One can't drop out of life. It is to be lived, tolerated, toasted, cheered, grumbled about and winked at, though in big variety, of course. Anyone who tells me that life is always a happy time and they have never felt remorse or regret, sadness or doubt either has led a very sheltered life or is not telling the truth.

Amendment 2

Lincoln, Neb. As an employe for the Nebraska Legislature, I support amendment 2.

New Year's Day is a legal national and state holiday. My family likes to spend the holidays together. Don't most people feel this way? Just because I work for the state, I see no reason why I would have to work on this last holiday of the Christmas season.

Another reason — perhaps a better one to merit support for Amendment 2 — is loss of taxpayer money to pay time and a half to a staff required to be present in order for the Legislature to meet. Even if this occurs only once every seven years, I do not feel this imposition upon state employes is justified.

STATE EMPLOYE

Jack Lindner

Lincoln, Neb. I have watched the staff of the county attorney's office grow from three attorneys to about 12 attorneys and from three secretaries to about 10 secretaries. I have waited many times to talk to a deputy on county business when he was busy with his private practice.

Now we have a deputy (Ronald Lahners) who wants to be elected as county attorney with an office budget of $329,000 per year from county tax dollars plus some federal funds. This is an increase of more than $84,000 over last fiscal year. Paul Douglas formerly ran the office with total expenses of $50,000, including salaries, for one year.

Since Mr. Lahners teaches classes at the university, represents a bank as their private attorney, and since he advocates the continuation of private law practice for his staff, I am going to vote for the Democratic nominee, Jack Lindner (former chief city prosecutor).

Jack Lindner advocates that the county attorney and the staff should be on a full-time basis so we would need fewer deputies and fewer secretaries and not so much county tax money to operate a public office where the attorneys are conducting private law business with our tax dollars.

Proposition 300

Lincoln, Neb. Do the pro and con groups of LB 772 (Proposition 300) have to file a list of donors such as candidates do? If not, I think it should be law that they be required to do so. The proponents have spent so much to thwart our petition rights, clear through the Supreme Court. They even hand-billed the entire Big Red 68,000-plus fans last Saturday.

Is anyone naive enough to believe this is a group of interested little home-owners? Thank heaven for Governor Exon's protection on this.

In our case, we purchased our home in 1945. The property taxes on this home tripled, until law removed it from the state property tax field. But our property taxes have remained about the same. But with the advent of the state sales and income taxes, our state tax bill for 1973 was 40% higher than pre-salestax days.

Now, if enough people are misled into voting for Proposition 300, these taxes will be increased 40% more, which makes this grab exactly what the plan was hatched for — state aid to big commercial taxpayers at the expense of the rest of us.

Dyas And Marijuana

Lincoln, Neb.
Mr. Phil Schreier makes a rather ridiculous statement concerning Hess Dyas and other Democratic candidates. With a sort of backward reasoning, he comes to the conclusion that candidates such as Mr. Dyas must support the legalization of marijuana. He appears to reason thusly:

(1) The protesters at the recent Lincoln visit by President Ford were protesting against the President, so they must be Democratic.

(2) Since the protesters support Hess Dyas, they must be expounding on his campaign platform.

(3) Since Mr. Dyas has not repudiated these people he must

(3) Since Mr. Dyas has not repudiated these people, he must actually support the legalization of marijuana.

(4) Therefore, Mr. Schreier reasons that Mr. Dyas must support the legalization of marijuana.

His reasoning, faulty though it was, just might have come to the right conclusion so I decided to check on the facts, something he apparently didn't have the time or desire to do.

I checked with the Hess Dyas campaign headquarters and

I checked with the Hess Dyas campaign headquarters and talked with Mr. Dyas himself, who made it perfectly clear that he does not support legalization of marijuana.

MARK FROGGE

Not In A Management Role

To the voters of District 145: Waverly, Neb.

I am forced to write this letter — not because my arm is being twisted but because of my concern for the management of our school system and of what might happen if certain interests are elected to the board of education.

We have a unique situation here where we have three school teachers or former teachers who are running for three vacant seats on the board. One might automatically think that putting a teacher on the board of education would be just what we want, because they would know what is best for our children, etc. But in my opinion, this is not the case.

Do the voters think a board of education could possibly handle any teacher problems when we have a teacher on the board? A teacher might very easily view a problem from the view of the personnel rather than that of management. It is very obvious that one of the candidates is being supported by the officers of local teachers' association.

The struggle between boards of education and powerful teacher organizations for local control of education is a reality in many school districts.

Why should we be concerned? If local control of education is to continue to exist in any place, that place will likely be a realitively small community where citizens do enjoy a school influence through their elected board members. Let's not permit organizations or outside bureaucracies to stymie our school systems.

I am not a candidate for the board of education, nor am I an employe of the school district. But I am a concerned parent who has children in the district. I think we have good teachers and they have a right to be heard. But not in a management role.

Let's consider these things when we vote. Let's keep our school board under control of local independent people, not of people who are being supported or influenced by teacher organizations.

CONCERNED PARENT

Hess Dyas

Lincoln, Neb. Voters in the First Congressional District will choose their representative on Nov. 5. Hess Dyas, the Democratic candidate, has aroused the interest of younger voters who have worked long hours in his campaign. Hess Dyas is a youthful candidate and is obviously well qualified to represent the First District.

This time First District voters should not be satisfied with a Thone-age representative. They should let young citizens know that their voices have been heard — that their personal involvement in our national government is an established fact.

A Visit To Teheran

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will hold crucial discussions in Teheran this weekend with the Shah of Iran, who has the power to bring the stratospheric cost of oil back down to earth.

The shah has become one of the world's most recklessly greedy, unbelievably wealthy rulers. He spearheaded the move to quadruple oil prices and he still isn't satisfied. He has hinted that the oil-producing nations should charge even higher prices.

His more responsible neighbor, Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, is worried that orbiting oil costs could endanger the industrial West. He has written a private letter to the shah, warning that neither kingdom will last if the West is plunged into economic chaos by exorbitant oil charges. To add emphasis to the warning, King Faisal delivered his letter to Teheran in person.

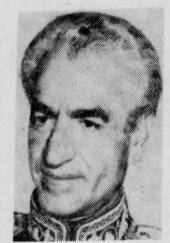

Saudi-Arabia and Iran produce almost half of the oil that is pumped by the 13 nations of the oil cartel. Thus, they could break the oil squeeze by acting together to cut prices.

At the lower levels, representatives of the two oil kingdoms are discussing a joint price reduction. But the shah keeps talking about higher, not lower prices.

He is determined to use his enormous oil wealth to make himself a world power. Last year alone, he spent $4 billion for U.S. military equipment. This has made Iran the No. 1 military power in the strategic Persian Gulf.

Kissinger has gone to Teheran, according to State Dept. sources, prepared to treat the Shah as a military ally and protector of U.S. interests in the gulf. Kissinger is counting heavily upon the Shah's good will to get lower oil prices.

This is contrary to the advice of at least one top policy-maker, Treasury Secretary William Simon, who fears Kissinger has underestimated the Shah's greed and ambition. If the Shah refuses to bring down his prices, say our sources, Simon wants to retaliate by quadrupling the

Not even the Central Intelligence Agency, which saved the Shah's throne in 1957, has had any influence with him in oil prices. The late CIA chief Allen Dulles flew to Rome and plotted with the Shah's sister, Princess Ashraf, to oust Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh. This prevented the Shah's overthrow 14 years ago. He showed his gratitude by opening Iran to the CIA. He permitted the CIA to install radio and telemetry interceptors, long-range radar devices and other high-powered electronic equipment in his country.

After the Greek military junta was ousted earlier this year, the CIA pulled many of its facilities out of Athens and moved them to Teheran. The CIA also works

It remains a mystery, meanwhile, how the Shah has always managed to work his way in Washington. He has been able to get just about what he wants from the United States. "It has been a one-way street," a cabinet officer said.

One alarming possibility, never fully proved, is that the Shah has paid off top American officials. Here are the allegations, which have been vigorously denied:

-A former Justice Department official, who has traveled extensively in Iran, reported to the Senate Watergate Committee that the Shah had delivered huge sums to former President Nixon. We contacted the official who described his sources to us in confidence. "I am certain in my own mind," he wrote us, "that if their names came out, they would be in prison or dead within 24 hours." We can say only that his sources are high in the Iranian government. The Watergate committee never got around to investigating the charges.

-We spent six months checking into reports that the Shah had funneled money into the Nixon campaign by way of Mexico. We made calls to Teheran, Geneva, Bonn, Mexico City and other faraway places. Separate sources, all of them anti-Shah and therefore suspect. told us that the Shah had transferred more than $1 million from his personal, numbered accounts in Switzerland to the Banco de Londres y Mexico in Mexico City for delivery to the Nixon campaign. Swiss banking sources confirmed that the Shah had sent money to Mexico from the Schweizerische Bank Geselshaft. We could get no reliable confirmation, however, that the money ever reached anyone connected with Nixon.

—A former Hubert Humphrey aide told us he had been approached by an emissary of the Shah during the 1968 presidential campaign. The emissary asked whether Humphrey would like a campaign contribution from the Shah, but the approach was rejected.

—An exiled Iranian leader named Kyber Khan testified behind closed Senate doors in 1963 that the Shah had given million-dollar contributions to a list of distinguished Americans. Khan produced photstats of secret Swiss bank records. Senate investigators were never able to confirm the charges and it is possible that the records had been forged.

Washington, meanwhile, is continuing its policy of placating the Shah while he hurts the United States with his oil

Energy And Transit

NEW YORK — One year after last winter's gasoline shortage began to be felt across most of America, the unthinkable has happened. Many of those who had to desert their automobiles and turn to mass transit have remained as transit riders, even though gasoline is plentiful again (probably not for long).

Too much can't be made of this. There weren't many mass transit riders to begin with. Not all that many Americans shifted to buses and subways last winter. When gasoline reappeared last spring, many of those quickly returned to their beloved automobiles.

Yet, the facts remain — as reported by the American Public Transit Association — that transit ridership has risen nationally for 12 consecutive months, so that in September, 1974, there were 7.8 per cent more transit riders in 120 cities than there had been in September, 1973.

Another encouraging sign for the sensible development of mass transit facilities is to be found in a political issues poll taken for the New York Times by Yankelovitch, Skelly and White Inc. A sampling of nearly 1,400 persons in New York state showed 64% of them favored more state emphasis on mass transit while only 27% favored improving and extending the highway system instead.

highway system instead.

The inclusion of New York City, with its heavy concentration of transit riders concerned about a possible fare increase, undoubtedly weighted the results. But even among "upstate" New Yorkers — outside the city and its suburbs — those sampled split almost evenly on the question, 45% for mass transit, 44% for the further development of highways. To some extent, that contradicts the conventional wisdom that mass transit is of importance only in a few major cities, notably New York City.

Yet, these good signs aside, public policy everywhere still tends to favor highways and automobiles, despite the nearcertainty of renewed gasoline shortages, the real possibility of higher gasoline prices (and higher gasoline taxes), continuing environmental concern, and the energy conservation Americans are being urged to undertake.

President Ford, for example, insists on looking at mass transit appropriations as a threat to his budget and therefore to his campaign against inflation. More properly, federal funds in aid of the long-range development of mass transit should be seen as a vital part of a national effort to conserve energy and control the environment.

Even in New York City, where

Even in New York City, where 40% of the nation's transit riders are concentrated, transit policy appears concentrated on the problem of saving the 35-cent fare with state, federal and local subsidies. Holding down the fare is vital, but it is only one part of the long-range need — which is to attract more riders through improved service.

Every increase in transit fare, as is well-known, results in a loss of riders and therefore is usually self-defeating. On the other hand, operating subsidies to maintain the fare can also be self-defeating. Rising costs mean the subsidies have to rise, too, absorbing money that ought to go to maintenance and capital improvements; eventually, the fare will have to go up, too, and the rider will find himself paying more for deteriorated service another sure formula for an ultimate loss of riders to the private automobile.

wisdom that mass transit is of importance only in a few major in the fact that the new device of giving two subway fares for the price of one on Sundays has been a success, attracting most of the new riders the New York City subway gained in the past year — after many years of steady losses. Such fare devices consistently attract new passengers, and others ought to be tried — reduced fares in the non-rush hours, for example, or computerized charges calculated by the length of the ride, or a price break for buying a large number of tokens at once.

Even more important, however, is capital improvement, especially in old transit systems like New York's subways. The plain logic of the converging problems of energy, environment and the economy is that high priority - not grudging lip service - ought to be given to providing new transit systems and vastly improving old ones. Such a national mass transit program might even provide a useful public service employment program, if Ford can be persuaded that rising unemployment requires something more than the limited emergency measures he has so far been willing to support.

The problem is not to get EVERYONE out of autos and into trains and buses. The problem is to lure enough people to mass transit to ease substantially the impact of the automobile on energy and the environment. Nor is it necessary to make mass transit self-supporting by the fares of transit riders.

It would be equitable for everyone to support, through their taxes, the contribution mass transit can make to easing the energy and environmental crises — not to mention the traffic problems that plague every city.

Private Practice The Issue

In the race for Lancaster County Attorney, voters Tuesday will have the opportunity to pick between two 40-year-old lawyers, each with prosecuting experience.

Ron Lahners, County Atty. Paul Douglas' chief deputy and choice to succeed him, has served 13 years under Douglas and is the Republican candidate. The Democratic candidate is Jack Lindner, a former Lincoln city prosecutor who is now an attorney here after practicing law briefly in Ames, Iowa

The major issue in the campaign is Lindner's opposition to the county attorney and his deputies engaging in the private practice of law on the side, a "fringe benefit" as it were, which has long been tolerated. Lindner points to Lahners' support of the supplementary private practice by the county attorney and staff, and Lahners' part-time NU teaching job, in arguing that the county attorney's office needs a "full-time" staff.

We agree with Lindner's contention that allowing the county attorney and staff to engage in private practice, no matter if it amounts to little, gives rise to the possibility of conflict of interest. It is best to eliminate that possibility, we think, and Lindher's position on the issue is a major point in his favor.

Professional opinion as to the two candidates is divided, as would be expected. A recurring theme heard among a number of local attorneys is that Lahners' volatile temperament has worked against him in the past and would continue to get in the way of his being an effective prosecutor. Lahners, it is felt in some circles, is an overly-zealous prosecutor, leveling in some cases charges of a more severe degree than the offense demands, and it is alleged his sometimes hardline tactics have been offensive to juries, judges and other at-

But Lahners' legal abilities otherwise are not under challenge. His reputation generally is that of a capable attorney.

Lindner enjoys a similar reputation as to professional competence. Plus, during his service with the city, Lindner was in our opinion a no-nonsense prosecutor, and a reasonable and compassionate one as

Based on what seems to be the overriding issue of the campaign whether or not to continue the private practice of law in the county attorney's office — and Lindner's demonstrated even temperament, The Star recommends a vote for Jack Lindner for Lancaster county at-

Colin, Hamilton

There is a day and night difference between the opposing candidates running for two seats on the Lancaster County

Incumbent Bob Colin, a Republican, seeks a second term in a contest with former Commissioner Ralph Harlan, a Democrat, for the 2nd District seat. And Democrat Bruce Hamilton is seeking to replace Republican Kenneth Bourne, who has kept the 3rd District seat warm for 16 years. While nominated by districts, commissioners are elected on a county-wide basis in the general election.

Harlan and Bourne personify the old status quo and thus many of the ills of county government. Affable men they are, but also uncertain, aging, slow to respond and behind the times.

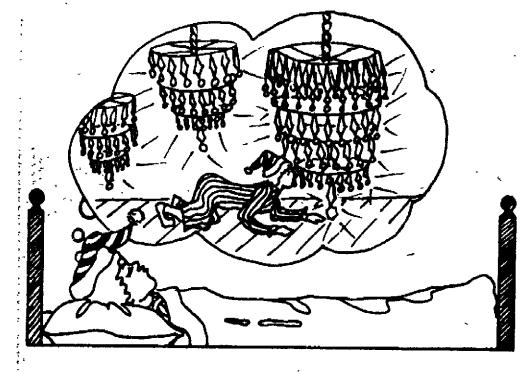

Incumbent Colin in the 2nd District and challenger Hamilton in the 3rd, on the other hand, are not afraid to look into the future to see what's coming. Both agree on the inevitability of city-county government consolidation some time in the future, for example, and each has his ideas on how best to prepare county government for that eventuality.

Colin has taken a sharp interest in county affairs, does not shy away from controversy and has contributed a significant amount of leadership at a level of government where there is precious little leadership. Considering his good record and his opposition in this election, Colin is very much deserving of re-election.

Hamilton, we suggest without fear of serious argument, is one of the best qualified candidates to appear on the county scene in years. His election to the 3rd District seat is in the best interests of Lancaster County.

One day several weeks ago a neighbor lady and I went to a large electric fixture display. The beautiful chandeliers hung from the ceiling of several rooms and other types of light fixtures hung on the walls. It was almost overwhelming to see all the prisms, copper and gold glitter in the light.

We had gone to select new lighting fixtures . . . at least "look" as is a woman's way of making a selection, since the lady is building a

The next morning as I talked to her on the phone she said she was so glad her husband had turned on the television when he got up that morning for she was almost in panic in her semi-sleep.

She was in the electric shop, dream-wise, down on her hands and knees, crawling this way and that trying to get out from under the chandeliers. Every direction she went she was abruptly stopped by a chandelier hitting her on the head.

There was one type of lighting chandelier that hung from the ceiling on the floor with lights giving the appearance of dripping water. This one she said was the biggest obstacle of all. She could not get under it regardless of how she hugged the floor in an attempt to get out of the room. Truly she said it was a problem that almost ended in panic had it not been for her husband who turned on the TV.

I laughed for I. too, have had such panic dreams and yelled desperately for help. No one ever seemed to hear me. Isn't it strange the way the mind continues to function in our sleep. although surely it too must be partially asleep? 소 ☆ ☆

The corn is out of the field, the soybeans long gone and the mile almost completely harvested.

It has been an ideal harvest season although a rain was much needed. This morning the fog is heavy and it will be noon before The Farmer can get into the field.

Perhaps this charge of weather from bright, sunny mornings to one of fog is telling of a change in the weather pattern.

I would like to see a day of rain replace the one we had yesterday. The wind blew and the dust circled, the milo husks flew and the leaves scattered in every direction from the trees.

A cock pheasant on the road as I passed in the car had a difficult time getting off the ground and into the air. It tilted this way and that, its tail went up and down, its body tipped to left and right until it finally decided to give up the flight and land just over the fence line in a field of corn.

I would class it as an emergency landing for if I were in a plane flying in such a precarious flight pattern. I would be more than willing to have the pilot set me back down on the ground

It must be a reflection on our society when we hear it said we need sports or half of the youngsters would quit school before graduation. Life is not a "sporting" thing. It is very rough at times and shouting "Rah! Rah!" doesn't make for a happy ending.

One can't drop out of life. It is to be lived, tolerated, toasted, cheered, grumbled about and winked at, though in big variety, of course. Anyone who tells me that life is always a happy time and they have never felt remorse or regret, sadness or doubt either has led a very sheltered life or is not telling the truth.

Amendment 2

Lincoln, Neb. As an employe for the Nebraska Legislature, I support Amendment 2.

New Year's Day is a legal national and state holiday. My family likes to spend the holidays together. Don't most people feel this way? Just because I work for the state, I see no reason why I would have to work on this last holiday of the Christmas

Another reason — perhaps a better one to merit support for Amendment 2 — is loss of taxpayer money to pay time and a half to a staff required to be present in order for the Legislature to meet. Even if this occurs only once every seven years, I do not feel this imposition upon state employes is justified.

STATE EMPLOYE ☆ ☆ ☆

Jack Lindner

Lincoln, Neb. I have watched the staff of the county attorney's office grow from three attorneys to about 12 attorneys and from three secretaries to about 10 secretaries. I have waited many times to talk to a deputy on county business when he was busy with his private practice.

Now we have a deputy (Ronald Lahners) who wants to be elected as county attorney with an office budget of $329,000 per year from county tax dollars plus some federal funds. This is an increase of more than $84,000 over last fiscal year. Paul Douglas formerly ran the office with total expenses of $50,000, including salaries, for one year.

Since Mr. Lahners teaches classes at the university, represents a bank as their private attorney, and since he advocates the continuation of private law practice for his staff, I am going to vote for the Democratic nominee, Jack Lindner (former chief city prosecutor).

Jack Lindner advocates that the county attorney and the staff should be on a full-time basis so we would need fewer deputies and fewer secretaries and not so much county tax money to operate a public office where the attorneys are conducting private law business with our tax dollars.

Proposition 300

Lincoln, Neb. Do the pro and con groups of LB 772 (Proposition 300) have to file a list of donors such as candidates do? If not, I think it should be law that they be required to do so. The proponents have spent so much to thwart our petition rights, clear through the Supreme Court. They even hand-billed the entire Big Red 68,000-plus fans last Saturday.

Is anyone naive enough to believe this is a group of interested little home-owners? Thank heaven for Governor Exon's protection on this.

In our case, we purchased our home in 1945. The property taxes on this home tripled, until law removed it from the state property tax field. But our property taxes have remained about the same. But with the advent of the state sales and income taxes, our state tax bill for 1973 was 40% higher than pre-salestax days.

Now, if enough people are misled into voting for Proposition 300, these taxes will be increased 40% more, which makes this grab exactly what the plan was hatched for -- state aid to big commercial taxpayers at the expense of the rest of us.

Dyas And Marijuana

Lincoln, Neb. Mr. Phil Schreier makes a rather ridiculous statement concerning Hess Dyas and other Democratic candidates. With a sort of backward reasoning, he comes to the conclusion that candidates such as Mr. Dyas must support the legalization of marijuana. He appears to reason thusly:

(1) The protesters at the recent Lincoln visit by President Ford were protesting against the President, so they must be

(2) Since the protesters support Hess Dyas, they must be expounding on his campaign platform.

(3) Since Mr. Dyas has not repudiated these people, he must actually support the legalization of marijuana.

(4) Therefore, Mr. Schreier reasons that Mr. Dyas must support the legalization of marijuana.

His reasoning, faulty though it was, just might have come to the right conclusion so I decided to check on the facts, something he apparently didn't have the time or desire to do. I checked with the Hess Dyas campaign headquarters and talked with Mr. Dyas himself, who made it perfectly clear that he does not support legalization of marijuana. MARK FROGGE

Not In A Management Role

Waverly, Neb.

To the voters of District 145: I am forced to write this letter - not because my arm is being twisted but because of my concern for the management of our school system and of what might happen if certain interests are elected to the board of education.

We have a unique situation here where we have three school teachers or former teachers who are running for three vacant seats on the board. One might automatically think that putting a teacher on the board of education would be just what we want. because they would know what is best for our children, etc. But in my opinion, this is not the case.

Do the voters think a board of education could possibly handle any teacher problems when we have a teacher on the board? A teacher might very easily view a problem from the view of the personnel rather than that of management. It is very obvious that one of the candidates is being supported by the officers of local teachers' association.

The struggle between boards of education and powerful teacher organizations for local control of education is a reality in many school districts.

Why should we be concerned? If local control of education is to continue to exist in any place, that place will likely be a realitively small community where citizens do enjoy a school influence through their elected board members. Let's not permit organizations or outside bureaucracies to stymie our school systems.

I am not a candidate for the board of education, nor am I an employe of the school district. But I am a concerned parent who has children in the district. I think we have good teachers and they have a right to be heard. But not in a management role.

Let's consider these things when we vote. Let's keep our school board under control of local independent people, not of people who are being supported or influenced by teacher organizations.

Hess Dyas

Lincoln, Neb. Voters in the First Congressional District will choose their representative on Nov. 5. Hess Dvas, the Democratic candidate. has aroused the interest of younger voters who have worked lone hours in his campaign. Hess Dyas is a youthful candidate and is obviously well qualified to represent the First District.

This time First District voters should not be satisfied with a Thone-age representative. They should let young citizens know that their voices have been heard — that their personal involvement in our national government is an established fact.

JACK ANDERSON A Visit To Teheran

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will hold crucial discussions in Teheran this weekend with the Shah of Iran, who has the power to bring the stratospheric cost of oil back down to earth.

The shah has become one of the world's most recklessly greedy, unbelievably wealthy rulers. He spearheaded the move to quadruple oil prices and he still isn't satisfied. He has hinted that the oil-producing nations should charge even higher

His more responsible neighbor, Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, is worried that orbiting oil costs could endanger the industrial West. He has written a private letter to the shah, warning that neither kingdom will last if the West is plunged into economic chaos by exorbitant oil charges. To add emphasis to the warning, King Faisal delivered his letter to Teheran in person. **☆ ☆ ☆

Saudi-Arabia and Iran produce almost half of the oil that is pumped by the 13 nations of the oil cartel. Thus, they could break the oil squeeze by acting together to cut prices.

At the lower levels, representatives of the two oil kingdoms are discussing a joint price reduction. But the shah keeps talking about higher, not lower

He is determined to use his enormous oil wealth to make himself a world power. Last year alone, he spent $4 billion for U.S. military equipment. This has made Iran the No. 1 military power in the strategic Persian Gulf.

Kissinger has gone to Teheran, according to State Dept. sources, prepared to treat the Shah as a military ally and protector of U.S. interests in the gulf. Kissinger is counting heavily upon the Shah's good will to get lower oil prices.

This is contrary to the advice of at least one top policy-maker. Treasury Secretary William Simon, who fears Kissinger has underestimated the Shah's greed and ambition. If the Shah refuses to bring down his prices. say our sources, Simon wants to retaliate by quadrupling the price Iran must pay for U.S. arms and wheat.

☆ ☆ Not even the Central Intelligence Agency, which saved the Shah's throne in 1957, has had any influence with him in oil prices. The late CIA chief Allen Dulles flew to Rome and plotted with the Shah's sister, Princess Ashraf, to oust Iranian Mohammed Premier Mossadegh. This prevented the Shah's overthrow 14 years ago.

He showed his gratitude by opening Iran to the CIA. He permitted the CIA to install radio and telemetry interceptors, longrange radar devices and other high-powered electronic equipment in his country.

After the Greek military junta was ousted earlier this year, the CIA pulled many of its facilities out of Athens and moved them to Teheran. The CIA also works closely with SAVAK, the Shah's secret police.

Yet the CIA has lost the hold it once had on the Shah. "He was our baby," a CIA source told us, "but now he has grown up." ☆ ☆ ☆

It remains a mystery, meanwhile, how the Shah has always managed to work his way in Washington. He has been able to get just about what he wants from the United States. "It has been a one-way street," a cabinet officer said.

One alarming possibility. never fully proved, is that the Shah has paid off top American officials. Here are the allegations, which have been vigorously denied:

-A former Justice Department official, who has traveled extensively in Iran, reported to the Senate Watergate Committee that the Shah had delivered huge sums to former President Nixon. We contacted the official who described his sources to us in confidence. "I am certain in my own mind," he wrote us, "that if their names came out, they would be in prison or dead within 24 hours." We can say only that his sources are high in the Iranian government. The Watergate committee never got around to investigating the charges.

-We spent six months checking into reports that the Shah had funneled money into the Nixon campaign by way of Mexico. We made calls to Teheran, Geneva, Bonn, Mexico City and other faraway places. Separate sources, all of them anti-Shah and therefore suspect. told us that the Shah had transferred more than $1 million from his personal, numbered accounts in Switzerland to the Banco de Londres y Mexico in Mexico City for delivery to the Nixon campaign. Swiss banking sources confirmed that the Shah had sent money to Mexico from the Schweizerische Bank Geselshaft. We could get no reliable confirmation, however. that the money ever reached anyone connected with Nixon.

-A former Hubert Humphrey aide told us he had been approached by an emissary of the Shah during the 1968 presidential campaign. The emissary asked whether Humphrey would like a campaign contribution from the Shah, but the approach was rejected.

-An exiled Iranian leader named Kyber Khan testified behind closed Senate doors in 1963 that the Shah had given million-dollar contributions to a list of distinguished Americans. Khan produced photstats of secret Swiss bank records. Senate investigators were never able to confirm the charges and it is possible that the records had been forged.

Washington, meanwhile, is continuing its policy of placating the Shah while he hurts the United States with his oil squeeze.

Energy And Transit

last winter's gasoline shortage began to be felt across most of America, the unthinkable has happened. Many of those who had to desert their automobiles and turn to mass transit have remained as transit riders, even though gasoline is plentiful again (probably not for long).

Too much can't be made of this. There weren't many mass transit riders to begin with. Not all that many Americans shifted to buses and subways last winter. When gasoline reappeared last spring, many of those quickly returned to their beloved automobiles.

Yet, the facts remain - as reported by the American Public Transit Association — that transit ridership has risen nationally for 12 consecutive months, so that in September, 1974, there were 7.8 per cent more transit riders in 120 cities than there 40% of the nation's transit riders had been in September, 1973.

Another encouraging sign for the sensible development of mass transit facilities is to be found in a political issues poll taken for the New York Times by Yankelovitch, Skelly and White Inc. A sampling of nearly 1,400 persons in New York state showed 64% of them favored more state emphasis on mass transit while only 27% favored improving and extending the highway system instead.

The inclusion of New York City, with its heavy concentration of transit riders concerned about a possible fare increase, undoubtedly weighted the results. But even among "upstate" New Yorkers - outside the city and its suburbs — those sampled split almost evenly on the question, 45% for mass transit, 44% for the further development of highways. To some extent, that contradicts the conventional wisdom that mass transit is of importance only in a few major

> Yet, these good signs aside, public policy everywhere still tends to favor highways and automobiles, despite the nearcertainty of renewed gasoline shortages, the real possibility of higher gasoline prices (and higher gasoline taxes), continuing environmental concern. and the energy conservation Americans are being urged to andertake.

> President Ford, for example. insists on looking at mass transit appropriations as a threat to his budget and therefore to his campaign against inflation. More property, federal funds in aid of the long-range development of mass transit should be seen as a vital part of a national effort to conserve energy and control the environment.

Even in New York City, where are concentrated, transit policy appears concentrated on the problem of saving the 35-cent fare with state, federal and local subsidies. Holding down the fare is vital, but it is only one part of the long-range need - which is to attract more riders through improved service.

Every increase in transit fare, as is well-known, results in a loss of riders and therefore is usually self-defeating. On the other hand, operating subsidies to maintain the fare can also be self-defeating. Rising costs mean the subsidies have to rise, too, absorbing money that ought to go to maintenance and capital improvements; eventually, the fare will have to go up, too, and the rider will find himself paying more for deteriorated service another sure formula for an ultimate loss of riders to the private automobile. * * *

Hallowe'en today means children flocking from door to door to enjoy the bounty of neighborliness. But in the Dark Ages this night was regarded with dread and apprehension.

Warmth, friendship, kindness, generosity inspired by our religious faith have replaced superstition. Believing in the Love of God man has nothing to fear.

Your children will remember for years the fun of Hallowe'en. Are you making sure they are learning the fundamental spiritual truths that have turned yesterday's fear into today's faith?

Once a year we celebrate the death of superstition. Every Sunday we celebrate the birth of

Are higher prices and tight mortgage money making home-ownership just another dream for the average Lincoln family?

Home Market Has Case Of The Highs - High Prices, Interest Rates And Downpayments

By LINDA OLIG Star Staff Writer

Steve and Karen Lenzen just bought their

'We were just looking," she said. "We were taking a look at the market, trying to see what we could get for our money.

Originally, they were looking at houses in the $16,000 to $17,000 price range, but grew "very disappointed" at what they could get for

They arrived at that figure, based up on Steve's annual gross income of $9,648 as an accountant for the state. The general rule of thumb is that the cost of a house should not exceed two and one-half times the gross income. Karen works as administrative assistant at the University of Nebraska computer network. Together they make nearly $17,000.

It didn't take the couple long to find out that the market has a case of the "highs" houses are priced higher than they expected; interest rates are high; downpayments are high.

They were still "just looking" when they got an offer they couldn't refuse - a $23,000 three-bedroom house.

Fortunately, they were able to assume the former owner's mortgage by paying off his $5,-000 equity. That was done with $2,000 the couple, married only seven months, had accumulated in savings, plus $3,000 borrowed at 6% interest from her parents.

The loan they assumed was at 7% interest, as opposed to today's going rate of 83/4%. Neither seller nor buyer was assessed discount

Their housepayments will be $182 per month, including taxes and insurance.

By assuming the 7% loan, the Lenzens were more fortunate than most young couples and middle-income families seeking homes.

All are caught in the economic crunch resulting in higher prices on homes and lack of mortgage money availability at the lending in-

"The problem in housing is not as much availability of money . . . as it is the fundamental problem that cost, land, materials and labor (involved in home building) have completely outrun personal incomes," said Art Burtscher, mortgage loan officer at First National Bank.

"Building costs within the last year have increased two and one-half times as much as personal income.

"The middle-income person is probably the hardest hit," he said.

That means that the typical middle-income home which sold for $20,000 five or six years ago, now costs $30,000 or more today, said Dan Cuda, owner and manager of Village Manor Realty.

"Even if they have a sizeable downpayment," the payments may be beyond their

Cuda offered three examples of changing costs of homes, all based upon a 20% downpayment with payments including principal and in-

-One Meadowlane home sold for $35,950 in November, 1971; at a 71/2% interest rate the monthly payments were $200.68. The same home sold three years later for $44,000 at 83/4%, making monthly payments $275.35.

-In March, 1972, a home in the Antelope area sold for $23,000; at 73/4% interest, the payments were $131.82. The home sold again in August, 1974, for $28,000 at an 834 interest rate, the payments grew to $176.30.

-In the Zeman Southeast area, a home sold for $29,750 in April, 1973; at 73/4% interest, the payments were $170.51. The same house sold for $31,950 in June, 1974; the interest rate then was 83/4%, making the payments, $200.61.

The would be buyer also faces difficulty getting a loan, realtors and representatives of lending institutions agree.

Loan companies are seeing their money go out faster than it comes in.

Many persons interviewed attribute that to the fact that the federally-controlled maximum interest rate on savings is less than investors can make by putting their money elsewhere, said a loan officer at Union Loan and Savings.

He laid much of the blame at the feet of the federal government. "Financial institutions can't compete with the government" which has been "financing its debts by selling notes, bills, on the market" at higher rates, such as 9.8%.

"Disintermediation, that's what kills us,"

So the lending institutions are seeing their wells drying up. They are forced to go out of the state to borrow the money they loan. That has helped drive the interest rate up.

'We're out of the (home loan) market temporarily because we are out of money," said a spokesperson for the National Bank of

Burtscher said First National is making no new conventional home loans "at this time."

'They only way to get a mortgage on existing property is to buy from someone who already has a mortgage and go back to the place where the mortgage was held . . . update the portfolio and refinance," Burtscher said.

Persons who have their home paid for have only two options if they want to sell, Cuda said. They can sell on a land contract or the buyer can get a government loan, forcing the seller to pay high discount points.

Conventional loans these days are those for which a 10-20% downpayment is required and for which many lenders charge an 83/4% or 9%

Lower downpayments are charged for FHA (3%) and VA (nothing down) loans, but the interest rates on those loans are higher, 91/2% and 9%, respectively. Those loans are insured by the federal government, whereas any conventional loan exceeding 80% must be insured privately. Another phenomenon has surfaced to the home buying and selling market in the past year - the assessment of discount points, usually to the seller, making him think twice before accepting an offer.

Those points, often ranging from 3 to 11% of the selling price of the home, formerly were associated with the government-insured home loans. But now they have overtaken the conventional loan market as well.

"It's just a thing that happened since interest was up and money became tighter," said Jon Marshall of Gateway Realty.

The discount point helps the lending institution get a more equitable return on its money, which may have been borrowed at an interest rate in excess of Nebraska's usury ceiling of 9%.

In today's rapidly changing economy, discount points assessed and downpayment requirements "vary daily," said Cuda.

"Two to three years ago, we would call once a month" to find out the going rates, he said. "Now it may change from morning to afternoon.'

Asked what the future holds for prospective homebuyers and the real estate and home loan markets, no one was able to guess.

Homes will continue to rise in cost at about 10% a year, Lem Dobbins, realtor for Peterson Construction, speculated.

'We must get back to the fundamentals, get into modular homes and condominiums and get the cost down so people can afford to buy homes," said Burtscher.

A First Federal spokesperson said he was optimistic about the housing situation in the Midwest, refuting reports that "the only way we will have housing in the future is in high rise apartments. I don't believe it," he said.

"I still think we will be in single family housing out here.'

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

2nd Psalm and Acts 4:25

"Who is on The Lord's side?" This question is from Exodus 32: 26. Moses asked the question of the children of Israel and called on all those who were on The Lord's side to come to him, and all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him. Moses himself belonged to this tribe of Levi which God had set aside for his special service. These men were ordered to do a terrible thing, "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother and every man his companion, and every man his neighbor. And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses; and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men!" Was not this a terrible thing to do, and a terrible thing to have to take part in? About this time, or just a little later, here were numbered of the nation 603,000 men 20 years of age and over that were able to be soldiers and go to war, and this indicated there were probably over three million men, women, and children total population. The killing of the three thousand is not so terrible when you consider that they perished instead of the three million, for God had told Moses: "Now therefore let me alone, that My wrath may wax hot against them. and that I may consume them and I will make of thee a great nation"-God's anger bursting into flame and burning them up! The object of this article is to present the facts, the setting, the context, concerning the question "Who is on The Lord's side" which appears nowhere else in The Bible, we think, in just these words. We carelessly and glibly sing the song "Who Is on The Lord's side" and doubtless feel that means us because we have joined the Church and have not been put in jail, maybe because we did not get caught, not yet. About six weeks before Moses asked this question he stood with the others at the foot of Mt. Sinai: Picture in your own mind what they saw as recorded in Exodus 19:17, etc.: "And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp "TO MEET WITH GOD"... And Mt. Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the Lord descended upon it in a fire; and the smoke thereof ascended up as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly. And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder. Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice." Out of this fearful and terrible scenery they heard the voice of God speak the Ten Commandments. "And all the people saw the thunderings, and the lightenings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking; and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off. And they said unto Moses, Speak thou with us, and we will hear; but let not God speak with us, lest we die." "And so terrible was the sight, that Moses said, I exceedingly fear and quake." Hebrews 12:21. After God finished speaking the Commandments to the people He called Moses up into the Mount. There he spent forty days with God, receiving detailed laws concerning the peoples relations with one another, and to their God; and also instructions for building a tabernacle for God to come and abide with them: and then God gave him "The Ten Words" written on two tables of stone. "The stones were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, written with the finger of God." Beginning with the 32nd chapter it appears that Moses conference with God was interrupted, and He told Moses to go down and see about his people for they had quickly forgotten their experiences and promises at Sinai, had made a golden calf an idol and were worshipping it! It was then that the wrath and anger of God of them had not Moses stood in the breach and interceded for them, and as a result of Moses mediation they escaped with only three thousand being slain, instead of the three millions! When Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on The Lord's side? Let him come unto me, these were called upon to execute the vengeance of God! If we consider ourselves as "being on The Lord's side" we would do well to consider our attitude towards the terribleness of sin and rebellion against God' Commandments: "The wages of sin is death, eternal death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus our Lord." When Moses saw the idolatry of the people, and how in their perverted worship they "sat down to eat and drink and rose up to play"—this makes one think of things going on in many of our churches these dayshe became angry and threw down the two tables of stone on which the Commandments were written, and broke them. Later God told him to cut out two stones and present to God for a rewriting of The Commandments "with the finger of God." God now calls on you and me to present the tables of our heart to Him in order that The Spirit of God might write His Commandments upon them. Beware, take heed, if you are one who thinks and claims "Christ is in you' and yet there is not the desire to be obedient to every Commandment of God: "Blessed are they that do His Commandments, that they may have a right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." Are higher prices and tight mortgage money making home-ownership just another dream for the average Lincoln family?

Home Market Has Case Of The Highs — High Prices, Interest Rates And Downpayments

Steve and Karen Lenzen just bought their

Originally, they were looking at houses in the $16,000 to $17,000 price range, but grew "very disappointed" at what they could get for

They arrived at that figure, based up on Steve's annual gross income of $9,648 as an accountant for the state. The general rule of thumb is that the cost of a house should not exceed two and one-half times the gross income. Karen works as administrative assistant at the University of Nebraska computer network. Together they make nearly $17,000.

It didn't take the couple long to find out that the market has a case of the "highs" houses are priced higher than they expected; interest rates are high; downpayments are high.

They were still "just looking" when they got an offer they couldn't refuse - a $23,000 three-bedroom house.

Fortunately, they were able to assume the former owner's mortgage by paying off his $5,-000 equity. That was done with $2,000 the couple, married only seven months, had accumulated in savings, plus $3,000 borrowed at 6% interest from her parents.

The loan they assumed was at 7% interest, as opposed to today's going rate of 8%%. Neither seller nor buyer was assessed discount

Their housepayments will be $182 per month, including taxes and insurance.

By assuming the 7% loan, the Lenzens were more fortunate than most young couples and middle-income families seeking homes.

All are caught in the economic crunch resulting in higher prices on homes and lack of mortgage money availability at the lending institutions.

The problem in housing is not as much availability of money . . . as it is the fundamental problem that cost, land, materials and labor (involved in home building) have completely outrun personal incomes," said Art Burtscher, mortgage loan officer at First National Bank.

"Building costs within the last year have increased two and one-half times as much as personal income.

"The middle-income person is probably the hardest hit," he said.

That means that the typical middle-income home which sold for $20,000 five or six years ago, now costs $30,000 or more today, said Dan Cuda, owner and manager of Village Manor

"Even if they have a sizeable downpayment," the payments may be beyond their

Cuda offered three examples of changing costs of homes, all based upon a 20% downpayment with payments including principal and interest only.

-One Meadowlane home sold for $35,950 in November, 1971; at a 71/2% interest rate the monthly payments were $200.68. The same home sold three years later for $44,000 at 834%, making monthly payments $275.35.

—In March, 1972, a home in the Antelope area sold for $23,000; at 734% interest, the payments were $131.82. The home sold again in August, 1974, for $28,000 at an 834 interest rate, the payments grew to $176.30.

-In the Zeman Southeast area, a home sold for $29,750 in April, 1973; at 73/4% interest, the payments were $170.51. The same house sold for $31,950 in June, 1974; the interest rate then was 834%, making the payments, $200.61.

The would be buyer also faces difficulty i getting a loan, realtors and representatives of lending institutions agree.

Loan companies are seeing their money go out faster than it comes in.

Many persons interviewed attribute that to the fact that the federally-controlled maximum interest rate on savings is less than investors can make by putting their money elsewhere, said a loan officer at Union Loan and Savings.

He laid much of the blame at the feet of the federal government. "Financial institutions can't compete with the government" which has been "financing its debts by selling notes, bills, on the market" at higher rates, such as 9.8%.

"Disintermediation, that's what kills us."

So the lending institutions are seeing their wells drying up. They are forced to go out of the state to borrow the money they loan. That has helped drive the interest rate up.

"We're out of the (home loan) market temporarily because we are out of money," said a spokesperson for the National Bank of

Burtscher said First National is making no new conventional home loans "at this time."

"They only way to get a mortgage on existing property is to buy from someone who already has a mortgage and go back to the place where the mortgage was held . . . update the portfolio and refinance," Burtscher said.

Persons who have their home paid for have Only two options if they want to se They can sell on a land contract or the buyer can get a government loan, forcing the seller to pay high discount points.

Conventional loans these days are those for which a 10-20% downpayment is required and for which many lenders charge an 8%% or 9% interest rate.

Lower downpayments are charged for FHA (3%) and VA (nothing down) loans, but the interest rates on those loans are higher, 91/2% and 9%, respectively. Those loans are insured by the federal government, whereas any conventional loan exceeding 80% must be insured privately. Another phenomenon has surfaced to the home buying and selling market in the past year - the assessment of discount points, usually to

HOME HUNTING . . . is over for Steve and Karen Lenzen (left) who recently purchased their first house

Those points, often ranging from 3 to 11% of the selling price of the home, formerly were associated with the government-insured home loans. But now they have overtaken the conventional loan market as well.

"It's just a thing that happened since interest was up and money became tighter," said Jon Marshall of Gateway Realty.

The discount point helps the lending institution get a more equitable return on its money, which may have been borrowed at an interest rate in excess of Nebraska's usury ceiling of 9%.

In today's rapidly changing economy, discount points assessed and downpayment requirements "vary daily," said Cuda.

"Two to three years ago, we would call once a month" to find out the going rates, he said. "Now it may change from morning to afternoon."

Asked what the future holds for prospective homebuyers and the real estate and home loan markets, no one was able to guess.

Homes will continue to rise in cost at about 10% a year, Lem Dobbins, realtor for Peterson Construction, speculated.

"We must get back to the fundamentals, get into modular homes and condominiums and get the cost down so people can afford to buy homes," said Burtscher.

A First Federal spokesperson said he was optimistic about the housing situation in the Midwest, refuting reports that "the only way we will have housing in the future is in high rise apartments. I don't believe it," he said.

"I still think we will be in single family housing out here."

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

2nd Psalm and Acts 4:25

"Who is on The Lord's side?" This question is from Exodus 32: 26. Moses asked the question of the children of Israel and called on all those who were on The Lord's side to come to him, and all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him Moses himself belonged to this tribe of Levi which God had set aside for his special service. These men were ordered to do a terrible thing, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel. Put every man his sword by and slay every man his brother and every man his companion, and every man his neighbor. And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses: and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men!" Was not this a terrible thing to do, and a terrible thing to have to take part in? About this time, or just a little later, here were numbered of the nation 603,000 men 20 years of age and over that were able to be soldiers and go to war, and this indicated there were probably over three million men, women, and children total population. The killing of the three thousand is not so terrible when you consider that they perished instead of the three million, for God had told Moses: "Now therefore let me alone, that My wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them and I will make of thee a great nation"—God's anger bursting into flame and burning them up! The object of this article is to present the facts, the setting, the context, concerning the question "Who is on The Lord's side" which appears nowhere else in The Bible, we think, in just these words. We carelessly and glibly sing the song "Who Is on The Lord's side" and doubtless feel that means us because we have joined the Church and have not been put in jail. maybe because we did not get caught, not yet. About six weeks before Moses asked this question he stood with the others at the foot of Mt. Sinai: Picture in your own mind what they saw as recorded in Exodus 19:17. etc.: "And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp "TO MEET WITH GOD"... And Mt. Sinai was altogether on a smoke. because the Lord descended upon it in a fire; and the smoke thereof ascended up as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly. And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder. Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice." Out of this fearful and terrible scenery they heard the voice of God speak the Ten Commandments. "And all the people saw the thunderings, and the lightenings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking; and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off. And they said unto Moses. Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die." "And so terrible was the sight, that Moses said. I exceedingly fear and quake." Hebrews 12:21. After God finished speaking the Commandments to the people He called Moses up into the Mount. There he spent forty days with God, receiving detailed laws concerning the peoples relations with one another, and to their God: and also instructions for building a tabernacle for God to come and abide with them: and then God gave him "The Ten Words" written on two tables of stone. "The stones were the work of God. and the writing was the writing of God, written with the finger of God." Hallowe'en today means children flocking from door to door to enjoy the bounty of neighborliness. But in the Dark Ages this night was regarded with dread and apprehension.

Warmth, friendship, kindness, generosity inspired by our religious faith have replaced superstition. Believing in the Love of God man has nothing to fear.

Your children will remember for years the fun of Hallowe'en. Are you making sure they are learning the fundamental spiritual truths that have turned yesterday's fear into today's faith?

Once a year we celebrate the death of superstition. Every Sunday we celebrate the birth of Believing.

Flooding Heavy In Texas

By United Press International Devastating thunderstorms that dumped up to 10 inches of rain over eastern Texas during the past two days caused heavy flooding Friday, forcing at least 30 families from their homes in the Fort Worth area.

Estimates of damage from the thunderstorms and accompanying tornadoes were in the millions of dollars.

Rivers and streams throughout northwestern Texas were out of their banks. A 35mile path of central Texas from Killeen to Belton was sodden from rampaging waters of Nolan Creek.

At midday Friday, 2.9 feet of water was flowing across the flooded Lake Worth spillway inside the Fort Worth city limits, forcing the evacuation of 30 families. Civil Defense coordinator Robert E. Lord said workers were on standby in case the flooding worsened.

Rain and snow fell from the Sierras into the wstern portions of Utah and Arizona.

Rain and snow also fell from Washington through the northern Rockies and plains into Upper Michigan. International Falls, Minn., recorded two inches of snow Friday and snow piled six inches deep in Richardton, S.D.

Scattered showers dotted a belt from Ohio to New England, while mostly clear skies prevailed over central and southern portions of the plains and Atlantic coast states.

Drilling Started On S. Viet Coast By Mobil Oil Co.

Saigon (AP) - The Mobil Oil Co. has officially started oil drilling operations off the coast of South Vietnam, a company official said.

The official said actual drilling operations began earlier this week from a floating rig 60 miles off the coast of South Vietnam in the South China Sea.

Mobil is now the second oil Stewardess alternates company conducting drilling operations on South Vietnam's continental shelf. Europe Facing Century's Worst Economic Crisis

Vienna (AP) - Europe is facing the most serious economic crisis of the 20th century, says the chief of the French Rothschild Bank, Baron Guy de Rothschild.

The financier declared oil is only one - though the most important - of a multitude of causes.

While the oil producing coutries are aware of the problems, De Rothschild maintained, it is an illusion to presume that recycling of the 'petrodollar' will come automatically. He said only longterm investments could bring a solution.

In a lecture here, the banker claimed the United States is less affected by these developments than Europe. He said Europe's economic and social system requires constant growth and that this is impaired by the energy shortage and by inflation.

Stocks Go New York (AP) -702 advances, 664 declines. $66\frac{7}{8}$, -6. Sales: 13,470,000.

New York (AP) — The stock market went nowhere quietly Friday in a session that contrasted sharply with the frequent fireworks of the past few weeks.

Brokers said it appeared the favorable effects of a prime rate cut by a major New York bank were cancelled out by increased uneasiness over the prospects posed by signs of a deepening economic downturn.

Nowhere

Quietly

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials drifted back and forth within a narrow range all day and finished with a narrow .24 loss at 665.28. The New York Stock

Exchange's composite common stock index slipped .03 to 38.94. But gainers edged losers 702 to 664 among the 1,751 issues changing hands on the Big Board. Volume slowed to 13.47 million shares from 18.84 million on Thursday.

As trading began, New York's First National City Bank reported it would lower its prime, or basic rate on loans to large corporations, from 11 to 103/4 per cent effective Monday.

That development, combined with the falling yields in the bond market over the past several days, gave the market some support, analysts said.

Investors, however, had to contend at the same time with the news that the nation's unemployment rate reached 6 per cent in October.

Later in the day the government reported that new factory orders took their sharpest drop since January 1970 in September.

Xerox, the day's most-active issue, was one of the few making any significant move. The stock reportedly the subject of a bearish report by a brokerage house, fell 6 to 66% on turnover of 170,200 shares.

Retail issues were generally strong in the wake of substantial October sales gains reported by several of the major chains Thursday. Federated Department Stores rose 1% to 27, Associated Dry Goods was up 13/4 to 18, and S.S. Kresge added 3/4 to 253/8.

Copper Range, which said it had scheduled talks toward a possible merger with Amax, advanced 23/8 to 253/4. Amax eased

Rising bullion prices in Europe helped gold issues score some moderate gains. Homestake Mining was up 2 at 51, Campbell Red Lake % at 87½. Esmark climbed 1¼ to 293/4. The company siad it expected to report record earnings for the fiscal year ended last Saturday.

Houston Oil & Minerals, again the volume leader on the American Stock Exchange, rose 11/2 to 287/8.

The Amex market-value index picked up .43 to 69.88. In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index closed at 65.06, off .17.

Citibank Cuts Rate To 1034%

New York (AP) - First National City Bank of New York, the nation's second largest, on Friday became the first major bank to cut its prime rate 1/4-point to 103/4 per cent.

The new rate charged on loans to top-rated business borrowers takes effect Monday. The prime rate at most other banks stands at either 111/4 per cent or 11 per

The reduction by Citibank More Increases marked the fifth consecutive week of lower prime rates, a development stemming from the recent slowdown in business loan demand and a concurrent drop in other short-term interest

Mini Car Output

Tokyo (AP) - Honda Motor Co. suspended the production of mini passenger cars for an indefinite period to increase the output of small-size passenger cars for export to the United States, Honda said.

Honda had been producing 2,000 to 3,000 mini passenger cars a month. Mini cars have an engine capacity of 360 cubic centimeters or less.

Honda officials said the decision to suspend mini car production also was taken because of declining demand for such motor vehicles, reflecting increased incomes of Japanese people.

In Paper Price Due In Future

St. Petersburg Beach, Fla. (UPI) - Bart De Lashmet, southern vice president of Abitibi Newsprint Corp., told Florida newspaper executives Friday they could expect additional newsprint price increases next year over those previously announced. "This is a very delicate subject to discuss at any time," Lashmet said, "but especially right now. The price of newsprint will continue upward, but possibly not at as fast a pace as last year." Lashmet said that wood fiber costs are up 94%, labor costs have increased 44%, oil prices

business costs have shown similar increases. Lashmet told the Florida newspaper executives that Abitibi' profits are up 122% over last year, "but 21% of this was contributed through mining interests."

Soybean Oil Futures Soar

Chicago (AP) - Soybean oil futures soared again to limits for one session on the Chicago Board of Trade Friday but other commodities closed on an irregular tone to lower.

The demand for soybean oil futures set in after prices had fallen some 40 points shortly after the opening. Export buying developed along with other commercial support and when local professionals joined the fray prices moved to the limit of 100 points. The demand appeared to be largely of a specultive nature.

Soybeans traded on the weak side through most of the session, largely on the basis of a government report showing that soy oil usage had slowed down last month and that stocks had increased. Meal futures closed some $6 a ton lower.

The weather tended to influence selling of corn, oats and wheat futures. The corn harvest reportedly was expanding under good weather conditions and recent rains proved beneficial for the winter wheat crop now in the ground. Oats followed the corn pattern, also easing at the close.

that dumped up to 10 inches of rain over eastern Texas during the past two days caused heavy flooding Friday, forcing at least 30 families from their homes in the Fort Worth area.

Estimates of damage from the thunderstorms and accompanying tornadoes were in the millions of dollars.

Rivers and streams throughout northwestern Texas were out of their banks. A 35mile path of central Texas from Killeen to Belton was sodden from rampaging waters of Nolan Creek.

At midday Friday, 2.9 feet of water was flowing across the flooded Lake Worth spillway inside the Fort Worth city limits, forcing the evacuation of 30 families. Civil Defense coordinator Robert E. Lord said workers were on standby in case the flooding worsened.

Rain and snow fell from the Sierras into the wstern portions of Utah and Arizona.

Rain and snow also fell from Washington through the northern Rockies and plains into Upper Michigan. International Falls, Minn., recorded two inches of snow Friday and snow piled six inches deep in Richardton, S.D. Scattered showers dotted a belt from Ohio to New England, while mostly clear skies prevailed over central and southern portions of the plains and Atlantic coast states.

Drilling Started On S. Viet Coast By Mobil Oil Co.

Saigon (AP) - The Mobil Oil Co. has officially started oil drilling operations off the coast of South Vietnam, a company official said.

The official said actual drilling operations began earlier this week from a floating rig 60 miles off the coast of South Vietnam in the South China Sea.

Mobil is now the second oil company conducting drilling operations on South Vietnam's continental shelf. Pecten-Vietnam, a subsidiary of U.S. Shell, has made two test wells in the past two months and found traces of oil.

One week ago, Pecten announced its second well had discovered oil and gas, but that additional tests and drilling are required to determine if it is commercially exploitable. An earlier well found traces of oil but not enough for commercial purposes.

Europe Facing Century's Worst Economic Crisis

Vienna (AP) — Europe is facing the most serious economic crisis of the 20th century, says the chief of the French Rothschild Bank, Baron Guy de

Rothschild. The financier declared oil is index closed at 65.06, off .17. only one - though the most important — of a multitude of causes. While the oil producing coutries are aware of the problems, De Rothschild maintained, it is an illusion to presume that recycling of the 'petrodollar'' will-come automatically. He said only longterm investments could bring a solution.

In a lecture here, the banker claimed the United States is less affected by these developments than Europe. He said Europe's economic and social system requires constant growth and that this is impaired by the energy shortage and by inflation.

Stocks Go Nowhere Quietly

New York (AP) - The stock market went nowhere quietly Friday in a session that contrasted sharply with the frequent fireworks of the past few weeks.

Brokers said it appeared the favorable effects of a prime rate cut by a major New York bank were cancelled out by increased uneasiness over the prospects posed by signs of a deepening economic downturn.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials drifted back and forth within a narrow range all day and finished with a narrow .24 loss at 665.28.

The New York Stock Exchange's composite common stock index slipped .03 to 38.94. But gainers edged losers 702 to 664 among the 1,751 issues changing hands on the Big Board. Volume slowed to 13.47 million shares from 18.84 million on Thursday.

As trading began, New York's First National City Bank reported it would lower its prime, or basic rate on loans to large corporations, from 11 to 1034 per cent effective Monday.

That development, combined with the falling yields in the bond market over the past several days, gave the market some support, analysts said.

Investors, however, had to contend at the same time with the news that the nation's unemployment rate reached 6 per cent in October. Later in the day the government reported that new factory orders took their sharpest drop since January 1970 in September. Xerox, the day's most-active issue, was one of the few making any significant move. The stock reportedly the subject of a bearish report by a brokerage house, fell 6 to 66% on turnover of 170,200 shares. Retail issues were generally strong in the wake of substantial October sales gains reported by several of the major chains Thursday. Federated Department Stores rose 1% to 27, Associated Dry Goods was up 1¾ to 18, and S.S. Kresge added

Copper Range, which said it had scheduled talks toward a possible merger with Arnax, advanced 2% to 25%. Amax eased 1/4 to 363/8.

Rising bullion prices in Europe helped gold issues score some moderate gains. Homestake Mining was up 2 at 51. Campbell Red Lake % at 871/2. Esmark climbed 11/4 to 2934. The company siad it expected to report record earnings for the fiscal year ended last Saturday.

Houston Oil & Minerals, again the volume leader on the American Stock Exchange, rose 1½ to 28%. The Amex market-value index picked up .43 to 69.88.

(UPI) - Bart De Lashmet, southern vice president of Abitit! Newsprint Corp., told Florida newspaper executives Friday they could expect additional newsprint price increases next year over those previously announced. "This is a very delicate subject said. "but especially right now. The price of newsprint will continue upward, but possibly not at as fast a pace as last year." Lashmet said that wood fiber costs are up 94%, labor costs have increased 41%, oil prices have jumped 165%, natural gas

business costs have shown similar increases.

Lashmet told the Florida newspaper executives that Abitibi' profits are up 122% over last year, "but 21% of this was contributed through mining interests."

Chicago (AP) - Soybean oil futures soared again to limits for rutures soared again to limits for one session on the Chicago pec Board of Trade Friday but other commodities closed on an irregular tone to lower. The demand for soybean oil futures set in after prices had fallen some 40 points shortly after the opening. Export buying developed along with other commercial support and when local professionals joined the fray prices moved to the limit of 100 points. The demand appeared to be largely of a specultive nature. Soybeans traded on the weak side through most of the session. largely on the basis of a government report showing that soy oil usage had slowed down last month and that stocks had increased. Meal futures closed some $6 a ton lower.

The weather tended to influence selling of corn, oats and wheat futures. The corn harvest reportedly was expanding under good weather conditions and recent rains proved beneficial for the winter wheat crop now in the ground. Oats followed the corn pattern, also easing at the close.

the last eight quarters, will be tested by a hefty Colorado offensive line which has been improving every game. Running at the Husker Black Shirts will be Terry Kunz, who has developed into one of the league's better fullbacks, and Waddy, a powerrunning end and elusive tailback.

The Huskers still rank very high nationally on defense fourth in total defense and fourth in rushing defense.

*Colorado, on the other hand. has been successful against the pass but is last in the Big Eight against the rush.

One reason for CU's low rushing rating is that Oklahoma two weeks ago had what its coach Barry Switzer said was we've been in the wishbone." The Sooners ran for 594 yards and added 47 passing for 641 yards of total offense.

The Buffs' defense, however, has been stingy at times, including the game against Iowa State when the Cyclones could master just 67 yards rushing as Colorado rolled to a 34-7 victory.

Quarterback Dave Humm, who leads the conference in passing, appears recovered from a back injury that caused him to be withheld from midweek workouts.

Stoping Humm is a must for Colorado. The Las Vegas lefthander has completed 61 of "our finest offensive game since 96 passes for a .635 average, 816 yards and six touchdowns.

His favorite target has been wingback Don Westbrook, who leads the Huskers in pass receiving with 18 catches for 291 yards. His five TD receptions tops the Big Eight.

Fullback Tony Davis leads a host of strong Nebraska runners with 375 yards on 72 attempts. Four other runners have topped the 200-yard mark — I-backs Monte Anthony 296, John O'Leary 232, Dave Gillespie 226, and wingback Westbrook 202.

Mallory, first-year CU coach, has been so intense in getting his team ready for Nebraska he broke a couple of bones in the small fingers near the knuckles of his right hand when he jammed it through a blackboard while meeting with his players.

He said the Nebraska game 'will test our manhood," adding he has been hearing a lot that Colorado "takes the choke" against the Cornhuskers and that 'there doesn't seem to be much effort to break tradition.'

The former Miami of Ohio coach added, "I don't know what we're going to do the rest of this season. We might lose all four games. I guarantee you we'll fight like hell. We'll find some players who'll go out and do the job."

The Cornhuskers are braced for such an effort.

Rockets Soar Past Ralston

By BOB MOYER

Ralston - Northeast converted three Ralston errors into three scores in lightning-quick fashion in the first quarter and then coasted the rest of the way for a 41-0 win here Friday night.

It looked at first like Ralston, now 1-8, would give the Rockets a good battle.

The Rams took the opening kickoff and sustained a nice drive, marching from their 38yard-line to LNE's 22 before disaster struck.

Sophomore quarterback Steve Michaelson, trying to convert on a third-and-seven situation, threw erratically and Northeast's Dan Cass intercepted with less than six minutes to go in the quarter. Three minutes later, the score was 21-0.

After two runs yielded nine yards following Cass' interception. Rocket quarterback Bruce Kuhn stunned Ralston with a 68yard bomb to end Larry Larsen.

Kirby Monahan's enusing kickoff was a worm-burner, skimming across the ground. Ralston's Mark Hiner finally snared the slippery pigskin, only to fumble on the Ralston nineyard-line when a host of Rocket tacklers smeared him.

Cass went the distance on the next play when he took a pitch from Kuhn, fumbled and recovered the ball in the end zone.

The Rockets caused an encore on the next kickoff when Hiner again fumbled the ball to Northeast, this time on Ralston's

Once again, on the first-play from scrimmage, Northeast scored. This time it was Steve Eliker who raced the distance and when Cass booted his third straight extra point, Northeast had a commanding 21-0 lead.

The Television Dilemma

Boulder, Colo. - Saturday's Nebraska-Colorado football game is only the third one involving Big Eight Conference teams to appear on ABC-TV's NCAA football series this season. And all three of them have been beamed only to regional audiences.

Reason for this vaucity of exposure, and resultant loss of revenue, is Oklahoma's NCAA probation banning the Sooners from television.

Another reason has been the performances of league teams generally which caused ABC to turn away from them to what it considered games that would be more attractive both to viewers and to sponsors.

The network didn't have that option until recently when the NCAA's television committee bowed to sponsor pressure. And the sponsors do pack a big wallop because they pay dearly for the rights to the telecast. ABC and the NCAA are in the first year of a two-year, $32-million contract that gives the network unprecedented freedom in picking its weekly presentations. About the only restriction the NCAA put on the network was limiting the number of appearances teams can make.

Without this restriction, the only teams you'd likely see would be the superpowers such as Notre Dame, Ohio State and

Notre Dame got on last week against Miami of Florida in a dull game instead of the Nebraska-Oklahoma State thriller. Reason was the ratings are down for the college game-of-theweek and ABC figured it needed the Irish to give them a boost.

The Irish were on against Georgia Tech back in early September. Since then the ratings have dropped six per cent. That is understandable considering the quality of the games

Huskers Lost Two Chances

Since appearing on regional TV against Wisconsin in mid-September, Nebraska has been considered for two other games (Missouri and Oklahoima State), but has been by-passed each time because of the way previous games turned out.

When Missouri was bombed by Wisconsin (also a regional game), ABC scrubbed plans to televise the NU-MU game which turned into a thriller (for MU and non-partisan fans only). Instead, it showed Texas A & M's 28-7 waxing of Texas Tech. NU-Wisconsin got on as a result of Baylor's 31-14 whipping game against Texas Tech. It turned out to be a 14-13 thriller for Last year. Big Eight teams were involved in three national of Oklahoma State, which was supposed to have been on the TV

telecasts which were worth $450,000 back to the league (divided among the members). Oklahoma, sadly enough for the conference, is barred both this year and next from television games. With the Sooners playing so well it's safe to assume they'd already have been on against Texas and probably would be picked again for the game

The probation also burts the Big Eight in major bowl money because Oklahoma would be a cinch choice. Now, the only conference hope for such a bowl bid is Nebraska and the Cornbuskers can't afford to lose another game between now and the Sooner buttle Nov. 23 in Lincoln.

That means their backs are against the wall and will stay that way the rest of the season. ?00000000000000000

Griffith: Even Love Has Tough Side

St. Monica's Home for women has been in the business of "tough love" for a long time, the Rev. Charles J. Griffith told attendants of the home's fourth annual awards banquet Friday night in Lincoln.

Griffith, alcoholism program coordinator for an area mental health center in Garden City, Kan., said that "even tender love has to have a tough dimension" if people are to help others who appear to want to refuse help.

Real love is more than an emotion, he said. It's a decision to do what's best for someone else, even if there's no feeling of love between the two people, and even if a person doesn't know what's good for

Supreme Court Asked To Drop G. B. Cook Case

G. Bradford Cook, former Securities and Exchange Commission chairman in the Nixon administration, Friday asked the Nebraska Supreme Court to dismiss disciplinary proceedings pending against him.

A judicial committee of inquiry has recommended the Supreme Court discipline the former Nebraskan for lying to congressional committees and a federal grand jury.

"As a consequence of the publishing in the communications media of inaccurate, false, misleading and prejudicial material," Cook told the court, he "cannot now or hereafter enjoy a fair trial by an impartial tribunal.'

Griffith: Even Love Has Tough Side

St. Monica's Home for women has been in the business of "tough love" for a long time, the Rev. Charles J. Griffith told attendants of the home's fourth annual awards banquet Friday night in Lincoln.

Griffith, alcoholism program coordinator for an area mental health center in Garden City, Kan., said that "even tender love has to have a tough dimension" if people are to help others who appear to want to refuse help.

Real love is more than an emotion, he said. It's a decision to do what's best for someone else, even if there's no feeling of love between the two people, and even if a person doesn't know what's good for him or her.

St. Monica's, in Lincoln, is a home for unwed mothers, for women with drug or alcohol problems, or marital or emotional problems. It is mostly supported by the

'Fit' Huskers Set To Challenge Ailing Colorado Buffs

By BOB OWENS Star Sports Editor

Boulder, Colo. - Nebraska will find out Saturday if it really is back in the groove when the Cornhuskers oppose Colorado in a regionally televised Big Eight Conference football game.

The Cornhuskers will be shooting for their longest winning streak of the season three — against a Colorado team which has lost only to powerful Oklahoma on Folsom Field this Kickoff will be at noon, Boulder time (1 p.m. Lincoln time) because of television.

Nebraska will be trying to prolong its streak by fielding a lineup that Coach Tom Osborne says is "better off physically" than in recent weeks. Colorado, on the other hand, has many nagging injuries.

The Buffaloes are expected to start without wingback Dave Logan, called the best athlete in the Big Eight, and tailback Billy Waddy, their leading ball carrier. Both, however, will be available and probably will play Logan still is bothered by a strained knee and Waddy has an ankle injury. Emery Moorehead will open in Logan's spot while sophomore Melvin Johnson, a 175-pound sprinter, will go in Waddy's place.

Coach Bill Mallory has regained the services of middle guard Steve Griffin, who missed the Missouri loss with a head injury. This has enabled him to move 258-pound senior Jeff Turcotte back to defensive tackle.

The Buffaloes' many assorted bumps and bruises have been traced in part to a rough work week, which Mallory promised following last Saturday's 30-24 defeat at Missouri. He said the practices have been spirited and hopes they accomplished what he sought in getting ready for what he expects to be a very physical game.

Colorado, on the other hand, has been successful against the pass but is last in the Big Eight against the rush.

Rockets Soar Past Ralston

By BOB MOYER

Ralston - Northeast converted three Ralston errors into three scores in lightning-quick fashion in the first quarter and then coasted the rest of the way for a 41-0 win here Friday night.

It looked at first like Ralston, now 1-8, would give the Rockets a good battle.

The Rams took the opening kickoff and sustained a nice drive, marching from their 38yard-line to LNE's 22 before disaster struck. Sophomore quarterback Steve Michaelson, trying to convert on a third-and-seven situation, threw erratically and Northeast's Dan Cass intercepted with less than six minutes to go in the quarter. Three minutes later, the score was 21-0. After two runs yielded nine yards following Cass' interception, Rocket quarterback Bruce Kuhn stunned Ralston with a 68yard bomb to end Larry Larsen.

Kirby Monahan's enusing kickoff was a worm-burner, skimming across the ground. Ralston's Mark Hiner finally snared the slippery pigskin, only to fumble on the Ralston nineyard-line when a host of Rocket tacklers smeared him.

Cass went the distance on the next play when he took a pitch from Kuhn, fumbled and recovered the ball in the end

The Rockets caused an encore on the next kickoff when Hiner again fumbled the ball to Northeast, this time on Ralston's

Once again, on the first-play from scrimmage, Northeast scored. This time it was Steve Eliker who raced the distance and when Cass booted his third straight extra point, Northeast had a commanding 21-0 lead. The Rockets scored three Troxel, who carried the ball 40 times for 148 yards, scored on a 28-run and passed 19 yards to Rick Graham for Superior, now 7-1. Junior quarterback Mark Wittler scored on a 16-yard run and passed 62 yards to Mark Bangert for the Jeffs, now 3-5.

In the second half, the Rockets scored on a 25-yard run by Bob DePriest, who had a fine game with 107 yards on 12 carries and on a 19-play, 79-yard drive engineered by sophomore quarterback Doug Berka and capped by Ron Kuehn's five-

The Television Dilemma

Boulder, Colo. - Saturday's Nebraska-Colorado football game is only the third one involving Big Eight Conference teams to appear on ABC-TV's NCAA football series this season. And all three of them have been beamed only to regional audiences.

Reason for this vaucity of exposure, and resultant loss of revenue, is Oklahoma's NCAA probation banning the Sooners from television.

Another reason has been the performances of league teams generally which caused ABC to turn away from them to what it considered games that would be more attractive both to viewers and to sponsors. The network didn't have that option until recently when the

NCAA's television committee bowed to sponsor pressure. And the sponsors do pack a big wallop because they pay dearly for the rights to the telecast. ABC and the NCAA are in the first year of a two-year, $32million contract that gives the network unprecedented freedom the NCAA put on the network was limiting the number of appearances teams can make. Without this restriction, the only teams you'd likely see would be the superpowers such as Notre Dame, Ohio State and in picking its weekly presentations. About the only restriction

Notre Dame got on last week against Miami of Florida in a dull game instead of the Nebraska-Oklahoma State thriller. Reason was the ratings are down for the college game-of-the-week and ABC figured it needed the Irish to give them a boost. The Irish were on against Georgia Tech back in early September. Since then the ratings have dropped six per cent. That is understandable considering the quality of the games

Huskers Lost Two Chances

Since appearing on regional TV against Wisconsin in mid-September, Nebraska has been considered for two other games (Missouri and Oklahoima State), but has been by-passed each time because of the way previous games turned out.

When Missouri was bombed by Wisconsin (also a regional game), ABC scrubbed plans to televise the NU-MU game which turned into a thriller (for MU and non-partisan fans only). Instead, it showed Texas A & M's 28-7 waxing of Texas Tech.

NU-Wisconsin got on as a result of Baylor's 31-14 whipping of Oklahoma State, which was supposed to have been on the TV game against Texas Tech. It turned out to be a 14-13 thriller for Last year, Big Eight teams were involved in three national telecasts which were worth $450,000 back to the league (divided among the members). Oklahoma, sadly enough for the conference, is barred both this year and next from television games. With the Sooners playing so well it's safe to assume they'd already have been on against Texas and probably would be picked again for the game at Nebraska. The probation also hurts the Big Eight in major bowl money because Oklahoma would be a cinch choice. Now, the only conference hope for such a bowl bid is Nebraska and the Cornhuskers can't afford to lose another game between now and

That means their backs are against the wall and will stay that way the rest of the season.

Republic (UPI) - Jaime Gonzalez of Brazil is the individual leader midway through the World Amateur Golf championship, and he's proof that college recruiting is a twoway street.

Oklahoma State did not recruit Gonzalez, a second team All American as a reshman last spring.

He recruited them. "I played with (Jack) Nicklaus, with (Tony) Jacklin, 285 (Gary) Player, in tournaments in Argentina and Brazil, and always, I ask them one question," Gonzalez says.

"I asked them where I should go if I wanted to be a golf player, and always I got the same answer-they told me I had to go to the United States." The only problem was that hardly anyone in the United States knew Gonzalez, let alone was ready to offer him a college scholarship. There was a solution waiting play in the Brazil Open last year and give some clinics, and maybe at the same time, just happen to get a chance to watch me play," Gonzalez says.

Harris liked what he saw, offered the slender, 20-year-old Gonzanez a trip to Stillwater, and last year Jaime became the Cowboys' No. 1 player as a freshman despite his admitted homesickness

Thursday, he shot a two-overpar 74 for a 36-hole total of 147 and a one-stroke lead midway through the world amateur.

The United States, meanwhile, lengthened its lead in the team race to five shots over second place South Africa behind a two-under-par 70 by University of Flrorida senior Gary Koch, the first sub-par score here in competition since the course opened three years ago.

Koch, a two-time Southeast ern Conference champion who "A man by the name of had opened the tournament with George Reed had gone to 79, one-putted an incredible 12 Oklahoma State a long time ago greens. "I got on the putting and he knew Labron Harris green this morning, and the putter just really felt good in my hands," he said. NCAA champion Curtis

Strange of Wake Forest had a 75 and New Yorker George Burns, holting a trap shot for an eagle at the final hole, a 76 for the U.S. national amateur champion Jerry Pate of Alabama had a 77 but only the best three count.

The U.S. had a two-day total of 445. South Africa was second at 450 and Japan third at 452.

Gonzalez, paired with Koch in one of today's feature threesomes, says he could hardly speak English until shortly before he first met Harris. "I had to study a lot-every day for about two months," he said.

Even then, there were some doubters when Gonzalez showed up on the Oklahoma State campus, all 130 pounds of him.

Those doubts were dispelled for good last spring when he capped a freshman year by winning the big eight champion-

Robbie Meier, the 20-year-old South African who led after the first round with a 72, needed 37 putts Thursday, shot 76, and was tied for second at 148 with Japan's Satoshi Yamazaki. Koch was at 149.

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) - Gibby Gilbert and Bobby Mitchell birdied six of their last seven holes and tied the long-shot duo of Joe Porter and Bob Zender for the lead after Friday's second round of the $250,000 National Team Golf Championship.,

"We're both kind of marginal players," said the talkative Porter, "but when we get together we play pretty good." It was a gross understatement.

They one-putted 10 times, seven times from 20 feet or more, and Porter once holed a sand shot for an eagle. Those two teams shared a one stroke lead over a pair from Santa Barbara, Calif., Al Geiberger and Buddy Allin. They combined for a 62 and a 125 total. At 126, just two shots out of the lead, were Lee Elder and Bob Murphy and Bert Yancy and Ed Sneed. The YancySneed team had a second-round 62, Murphy-Elder a 63. The Massengale brothers, Rik and Don, who led after the first round, slipped to a 66 and were four shots back at 128.

Arnold Palmer, who said "I played my most solid round in five years," and partner Lanny Wadkins closed with a 63-130. "I shot 66 on my own ball and could have birdied 16 times,' the delighted Palmer said. Johnny Miller, winner of eight tournaments this year, and Grier Jones had a 64-132. Favored Jack Nicklaus and Torn Weiskopf also managed a 64 and were seven shots away from the lead at 131.

Porter, who has quit the tour in disgust three times, and the husky Zender had an almost unbelievable round—one that could have broken 60 except for the bosev on the fifth hole where the bosev on the they both missed the green.

board was asked to decide soon whether or not it wants to remodel the existing grandstand or build a new facility for patrons of the races.

Other decisions — and "ifs" must be dealt with first, manager Henry Brandt told the board.

If the Lancaster County Commissioners approve the plan to issue bonds for about $1.2million of improvements on the track and horse barns, the sale of such bonds should begin later in the month. Presently, plans call for submission of the proposal to the commissioners on Nov. 12.

If that hurdle is cleared, as Brandt expects it will be, there is the matter of what interest rate to be paid investors will be set for the bonds.

If the sale is successful, the state still has to give the goahead for construction.

If a bid is accepted, work might start yet this year - if the weather permits. And if all of that works out, there is a chance that the Lincoln plant will at least have new horse barns and a completely redesigned oval on which the thoroughbreds will race in 1975.

That's the first step in the $5million improvement program the last Legislature approved for the Fairgrounds — if the money can be raised through sale of the revenue bonds. That sale seems assured, since the three Nebraska-based financial firms handling the bond sale have agreed to purchase any bonds not sold to the public.

www. "We need a lot of things to go our way to get the job done," Brandt said, "but I keep hoping luck will stay with us.'

is completed, a new, or remodeled, modern grandstand area will be ready for patrons. And the horses will be running for purses over a new, wide oval. And, when not in action, the animals will be housed in a series of new, attractive barns -

When is the target date? Brandt, ever the optimist, is sticking with the 1976 season . . .

Associated Press ratings. Alabama holds a lopsided 45-10-3 series bulge over Mississippi State and has won the last 16 meetings. But the Bulldogs have a 6-1 mark, their best start since 1955, and Bear Bryant is worried-as usual. Truthfully, he'd be worried if State hadn't won a game or scored a point.

Auburn-Florida is one of the South's oldest rivalries, but seldom has it meant more than this meeting. A loss will virtually knock Florida out of the SEC chase while Auburn, of course, must win to keep pace with Alabama, assuming the Crimson Tide beats Mississippi State.

The similarities are numerous. Both teams are run-oriented, strong on defense, rely a great deal on the kicking game and field position and have exceptional linebacking. They're both land-grant schools, originally agricultural institutions but now boasting many curricula.

Penn State's record of 35-2 against Atlantic Coast Conference teams is in eminent danger from Maryland although most of that record-19-1, to be precise-has come against the Terrapins.

Ohio State is after a couple of milestones against Illinois. A victory would be the 200th for Woody Hayes and only Alabama's Bear Bryant among active coaches has more. And Buckeye tailback Archie Griffin needs 100 yards rushing to set a national record of 18 consecutive 100-yard regular-season

While Griffin needs 100 yards to stand alone in the record books, Oklahoma needs nonezero-to maintain its position as the top yardage-making team in the land. If the Sooners get nary a yard against Iowa State, runner-up Temple would need 656-almost 200 above its average-to catch the Sooners. And if Oklahoma maintains its average of 582 yards a game, Temple can tie by accumulating a mere 1.240.

Tech Colleges Board Hikes Budget For New Projects

By DICK HOLMAN Star Staff Writer

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges Friday approved a supplemental budget request of $767,445 for new programs in 1975-76, and $2.6 million for capital outlay in Nebraska's six community for new programs from the college areas.

The requests will be submitted to the State Department of Administrative Servies and the board included an $80,324 1975 Legislature for approval. The board action in Lincoln brings the total proposed 1975-76 operation budget for the community colleges to $30,990,276.

The total for new programs includes $326,484 for the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area; $401,259 for the Central Area, and $39,702 for the Mid Plains

> Board Executive Director Robert Schleiger said the board next year will develop an inventory system to allow for depreciation, and guidelines for future capital equipment

College area officials have objected to the board acting on capital outlay items arbitrarily as a percentage of each area's total budget.

In other business, the board tabled a Metropolitan Area request to approve $2.5 million for options to buy two areas of property totaling 161.5 acres in Omaha. Metropolitan Area President Marm Harris said the land would be used to establish permanent sites for the Western Douglas County and South Omaha campuses.

Board members decided to recess and act on the proposals after the Nebraska attorney general decides Metropolitan's statutory right to buy the properties by option.

Board Executive Director Robert Schleiger said the board next year will develop an inventory system to allow for depreciation, and guidelines for future capital equipment

College area officials have objected to the board acting on capital outlay items arbitrarily as a percentage of each area's total budget.

In other business, the board tabled a Metropolitan Area request to approve $2.5 million for options to buy two areas of property totaling 161.5 acres in Omaha. Metropolitan Area President Marm Harris said the land would be used to establish permanent sites for the Western Douglas County and South Omaha campuses.

Board members decided to recess and act on the proposals after the Nebraska attorney general decides on Metropolitan's statutory right to buy the properties by option.

Republican gubernatorial nominee Richard Marvel Friday aimed a number of allegations at promised a "complete Gov. J. James Exon and his adreorganization of the management of major state departments' if he is elected governor next Tuesday.

Marvel said the first to go would be State Institutions Director Jack Anderson, who announced his resignation nearly five months ago.

"However, he is still serving as director of the department and I don't think he has any intention of leaving if the present administration is re-elected,"

The Republican nominee ministration. 'There is evidence that many of the Exon appointments, and those of his henchmen, have been made on the basis of political patronage without regard to experience and ability," Marvel said.

Chief Deputy County Atty. chief deputy since July, 1972, Ronald Lahners said Friday he has no objection to the law prohibiting private law practice by the Lancaster County at- tice. torney which takes effect in January, 1979.

He said there will be a transition period until such time as the county attorney could cease his minimal private practice.

Write-In Candidates Go On Ballot Cover

In these days of punchcard ballots and computerized tallying of votes, the write-in candidate hasn't been left out in the cold.

If your favorite candidates aren't on the ballot and you'd like to have those votes count, the place to write in names is on the inside cover of the gray jacket your ballot comes in.

There are spaces for up to 23 write-ins, according to the County Election Commissioner's Office. Secretary of State Allen Beermann said voters who choose to write in candidates should print the person's name and the title of the office that person is running for.

In order for the vote to be valid, the last name of the write-in candidate must be correctly spelled, Beermann cautioned. The first name can be misspelled, he said, as long as it's clear who the voter

The voter must also clearly designate the office the write-in candidate is seeking, Beermann said, whether it's state legislature, board of regents, governor, etc.

Write-In votes won't be overlooked, he assured. Every jacket is looked at more than once and by more than one person, he said.
